INTRODUCTION.

THE Prapancha is the extended universe composed of the five elements (Mahābhūta) or "Ether," "Air," "Fire," "Water," "Earth." The title of the work, therefore, means the essence, or the account, of the Prapancha.

This celebrated text is attributed to the great philosopher and devotee Shaṁkarāchārya. At the time printing was commenced it had not been previously published but after the receipt of the Text from the press and when this Introduction was being prepared, the nineteenth and twentieth volumes of the collected works of Shaṁkara were published by the Vā*n*ī Vilāsa Press, at Srirangam, Madras, containing the present work. An examination, however, of its text has shown it to contain some errors and therefore this present edition, even apart from the Introduction which follows, will not prove to be unnecessary.

In preparing this edition use has been made of three manuscripts : one in the possession of the Asiatic Society of Bengal ; another the property of the Varendra Anusandhāna Samiti of Rajshahi ; and a third belonging to Sj. Aks*h*aya Kumāra Maitra. This third manuscript was formerly the property of the late Achalānanda Swāmī and is, according to the information of one of his Shis*h*yas, in the Guru's own handwriting.

As I have said this work is in India currently attributed to Shaṁkara the author of the Shārīrakabhās*h*ya and was, therefore, included in the collection above mentioned. The author of the Prapanchasāravivara*n*a states that Shiva is the author of this work through his incarnation (Avatāra) the philosopher Shaṁkara. The names of other Shaṁkaras occur in Tantrik literature such as the son or Kamalākara the author of the Vāsanātattvabodhinī or Tārārahasyav*ri*ttikā, and the Shaṁkara who is a commentator upon the *Shat*chakranirūpa*n*a published as the second volume of this series. The colophon at the end of the Madras edition refers to its composer as Bhagavān Shaṁkarāchārya, a title which is only applied to the author of the Shārīraka-bhāshya who is believed to have been an incarnation of Shiva Himself. It is not stated, however, whether that colophon appears in the manuscript from which the Madras edition was prepared. In the three manuscripts on which this edition is based there is no such colophon. Whether, however, the work is rightly accredited is another question. It is common knowledge that in the history of all religions, works are attributed to great names to gain for them an authority which their real author could not perhaps have achieved. Doubtless some writings which pass under the great name of Shaṁkara are not really his. I have pointed this out in connection with one of the hymns attributed to him and which I have published (1) in collaboration with my wife Ellen Avalon. So again we find the Tārāpajjhaṭikā Stotra (which is given in the Tantrik compendium the Tārā-rahasyavrittikā above mentioned) attributed to Shaṁkarāchārya though the same hymn is elsewhere in another manuscript ascribed to the Atharvanīyo Upanishad (2). In support of the accredited authorship I have been referred, in addition to the general style, and authoritative tone of the work, to the 59th verse of the 20th Paṭala where in enumerating the different Avatāras the name of Buddha is omitted. Now Buddha has been recognised as one of the ten Avatāras from the days of the Purāṇas to those of Jayadeva. It has, therefore, been suggested that only an author of the authority of Shaṁkarāchārya who in particular strongly combated the Buddhist doctrines would have presumed thus to run counter to such a recognised tradition. On the other hand, in one of the smaller hymns attributed to Shaṁkarāchārya Buddha is recognised as one of the Avatāras. Further in support of the accredited authorship we have the fact that both Rāghave Bhaṭṭa in his commentary on the Shāradātilaka and Kālīcharaṇa in his *Shaṭ*chakranirūpaṇa refer to the author of the Prapanchasāra as Shrīmadāchārya by which term the great Shaṁkara alone is meant. I leave however others, who may think that the contents of the work itself notwithstanding its authoritative tone and general style tell against the tradition as to its authorship, the developement of their thesis.

Whoever the author may be the Tantrik character of the text admits of no doubt. It is constantly cited as an authority in other Tantrik works, notably by Rāghava Bhaṭṭa, one of the greatest of Tantrik commentators, the author of the Bhāshya on the celebrated Shāradātilaka of Lakshmaṇāchārya. It is also referred to by Kālīcharaṇa in his notes on the *Shaṭ*chakranirūpaṇa and by Vishvanātha in the *Shaṭ*chakravivṛiti and by many others. The work is not only frequently quoted, but it has been the subject of several commentaries, among others the Prapanchasārasambandhadīpikā, the Prapanchasāravivaraṇa, and the Prapanchasārasārasaṁgraha ; the last two dealing chiefly with ritual and Mantra. Further than this, the philosophical doctrine relating to sound-creation, the general terminology, Devatās of worship and the ritual character of its contents from the sixth chapter to the end of the work make any further elaboration of this point unnecessary which will be obvious to any one who is conversant with the Tantras and the present text. For others I need only for example draw particular attention to the reference to the Tantrik Bhūtashuddhi rite ; the detailed account in the ninth chapter of the worship of Tripurāvidyā and to Japa, Bīja, Yantra, Mudrā and so forth which, as H. H. Wilson (1) long ago pointed out, are distinguishing marks of Tantrik ritual.

2. The name of the Upanishad is given as it appears in the manuscript.

Having, however, regard to the alleged authorship the question may be asked, whether the work should be described as a Tantra or Tantrik text, such as, for instance the Shāradātilaka, Shāktānandataraṁgiṇī and like works. If it be not an original Tantra then the authoritative style and form of the work would render it more akin to the Shāradā than to the Shāktānandataraṁgiṇī. Tantrasāra, and other similar works which do not profess to be anything but compendia. The Madras edition says—Bhagavat Shrī Shaṁkarāchārya-virachita ; that is, "composed or compiled by Bhagavān Shaṁkarāchārya." If it be the fact that it is the original composition of Shaṁkarāchārya then unless we can regard the work as the teaching of Shiva in his Avatāra as the great philosopher it would not be a Tantra in the proper sense of the term. For such a view however there is the authority of the statement of the Prapanchasāravivaraṇa to which I have referred. Still less would the text be such a Tantra if the author was some other Shaṁkara. On the other hand, the form in which the work appears is that of a discourse of the Mahāvishṇu in answer to questionings by Brahmā. An old and learned Orissan Pa*nd*it to whom this question was referred stated to me his opinion to be that Shaṁkara was not the author of the work but its redactor or compiler, thus occupying the same position in regard to it as the Rishis did to the Vaidik Shruti. The question has importance because, amongst other reasons, of the fact that the Mahāsiddhasāra Tantra includes a Tantra called the Prapanchasāra amongst the group of 64 assigned to the Rathakrāntā (1). Whether the Tantra there referred to is the text before us I cannot say. It may be another of the same name. Thus we find in the group of Tantras mentioned by the Mahāsiddhasāra the Panchadashī. All are aware that the Panchadashī is not a Tantra but a Vedāntik treatise. It is possible, however, that a Tantra was also so-called just as there is one which is entitled Matsyasūkta. I have been informed, though I have not yet seen any such manuscript, that there was an ancient Tantra called Prapanchapanchaka, and it has been suggested that the text before us is a summary of that work. The title is not inconsistent with such view. For " sāra " may here refer either to the essence of the material world (prapancha) or to a summary of the Prapanchapanchaka though in that case the title would more properly be Prapanchapanchakasāra in the sense of the world " sāra " as used in the title of the well-known treatise of K*rishn*ānanda, the Tantrasāra.

Whatever be the authorship, the question last discussed seems to be concluded by the statement contained in the work itself. For at v. 62, Chapter 36, Mahāvi*shn*u says, "Oh Lotus-born ! in this Tantra (Tantre' smin) I have shown thee the Prapancha in its five-fold aspect" (2).

The text is a very important one and service would be rendered by its complete translation. A summary of the work which deals with the worship of all the Devatās is as follows :—

1. see Introduction to my edition of the first part of "Principles of Tantra".

2. It must however be noted that the word Tantra is sometimes used in a wider sense, that is, in a sense in which it is not an original Tantra e. g., the Shāradā speaks of itself as a Tantra. See Introduction to my "Principle of Tantra," Vol. I.

[Padmapāda says the five-fold aspects are ;—Sthūla, Sūk*sh*ma, Kāra*n*a, Sāmānya, Sāk*sh*i.]

CHAPTER I.

At the close of the period of dissolution (Pralaya) Brahmā Vi*sh*n*u and Rudra (1) who are respectively distinguished by the Gu*n*as (Gu*n*aprabhinna) Rajas, Sattva and Tamas, appeared. Wondering how it was that they came into being and the object thereof, they approached Nārāya*n*a (here the Mahāvi*sh*n*u) then resting in the Ocean of Nectar and began to sing His praises. Pleased thereat He displayed to Them His great and beauteous form ; the sight whereof awed and astounded them.

Brahmā then said "Oh Lord, be merciful and tell us who we are and whence we have sprung; what is our cause and what is that which we are to do (Kriyā)".

Nārāya*n*a replied "You have been brought forth by the Eternal Imperishable (Ak*sh*ara). Your respective work is to create, to preserve and to destroy".

Brahmā then asked "What is the Eternal Imperishable ; what is Its nature ; whence has It come ?"

Nārāya*n*a replies with a discourse on the creation of the world and teaches Brahmā, Vi*sh*n*u, and Rudra the nature of Puru*sh*a and Prak*ri*ti (2) or Pradhāna (3) the two supreme Tattvas (4). Of the twenty-five Tattvas, Puru*sh*a and Prak*ri*ti are stated by the Mahāvi*sh*n*u to be eternal (Nitya) Prak*ri*ti extending over and enveloping the whole universe "including Thee Oh Brahmā and Myself Nārāya*n*a." Of Prak*ri*ti the latter says "She knows Herself. None know Her but I as Kāla only." "Kāla it is," He says, "who effects Vik*ri*ti or change in Prak*ri*ti with Her three gu*n*as, Sattva, Rajas and Tamas (5) which exist throughout the whole universe and permeate all the Vikāras (6)". The Mahāvi*sh*n*u continues His discourse of which the following is a summary.

1. For they are the effect of the working of Prak*ri*ti and manifest Her gu*n*as though in different proportions according to their specific activities.

2. See note at p. 29 post.

3. See note at p. 29 post.

4. Prak*ri*ti is the invisible ultimate source as noumenal matter of all manifestation through whose contact with Puru*sh*a the whole universe arises.

5. With their characteristics of happiness, sorrow, and delusion and functions of revealing, inciting to activity and veiling or suppressing, respectively. Gu*n*a is that which works for another as they do for Puru*sh*a. See my Introduction to the Mahānirva*n*a Tantra under the heading "Gu*n*a." (1st Ed.).

Prakriti by contact with the light (Jyotih) (1) is Chinmātrā (2). In the desire to create She "solidifies" or "thickens" (Vichikīrshur ghanībhūtā) and appears as Bindu (3). Through the instrumentality of Kāla the Bindu divides itself into three, viz., Sthūla (gross) Sūkshma (subtle) and Para (supreme). These are Bīja, Nāda (4) and Bindu (5) respectively. On this self-division of the supreme Bindu there arises an inarticulate sound (Avyaktarava) (6) which is the Shabda-Brahman or Sound Brahman (7). The latter is beyond speech (Avāchya) and is understandable to Itself alone (Svasaṁvedyasvarūpa) (8). The wise know "sound" to be the Shabda-Brahman. It permeates all substance and in the animal body exists as the five "elements" (Panchabhūtātmakadeha).

From this sound originates Mahat (9) or Buddhi and from the latter Ahaṁkāra which is threefold : Vaikārika,

1. Purusha.

2. That is, She who is in the first place Tattva (mere "thatness") quickens under the influence of Chit or consciousness which according to the Sāṁkhya system She reflects ; then She longs to create (Vichikīrshu) and "solidifies" (Ghanībhūtā) and appears as Bindu. See post and notes. The verse is quoted variously and reads also Chinmātra referring to the Light.

3. That is the Kārana or Causal Bindu which the Brahman becomes after passing from its state in Pralaya to that called Vichikīrshā when Karma ripens. As to the meaning of this, see Arthur Avalon's Introduction to "The Serpent Power."

4. Sā tattvasaṁjnā chinmātrā jyotishah sannidhestadā.
Vichikīrshurghanībhūtā kvachidabhyeti bindutām.
Kālena bhidyamānastu sa bindurbhavati tridhā.
Sthūla-sūkshma-paratvena tasya traividhyamishyate.
Sa bindur nādabījatvabhedena cha nigadyate.

Ch. I. 41, et Seq.

5. That is, the Kārya or effect Bindu as Nāda is the Kriyā Bindu.

Another reading, given by Kālicharana, substitutes dvidhā for tridhā in the third line and the remaining lines also differ. According to this version the division is twofold into Hang and Sah (See Vol. II, Tantrik Texts, p. 66), the combination being Hangsah.

See Woodroffe's Shakti and Shākta and Garland of Letters.

6. See as to this, Rāghavabhatta's commentary on the Shāradātilaka and Woodroffe's Shakti and Shākta.

7. So also the Shāradātilaka says :—

Bhidyamānāt parādvindoravyaktātmā ravo'bhavat.
Shabdabrahmeti taṁ prāhuh.

Ch. I. 11, 12.

8. Thus, (to illustrate the meaning of this term), whereas others may see in me a man I alone really know what a man is, and what I am. One must be a thing to know what it is. The existence of Prakriti is only inferrible from Her effects which exist in their cause.

9. It is said that this word does not, as is generally supposed, mean "great" but is derived from Maghas which means Light (Jyotih).

Taijasika, and Bhautika (1). From Ahaṁkāra issued the five Tanmātras (2) ; from which were developed the five gross elements (Mahābhūtas) (3) viz., "ether," "air," "fire," "water," "earth" (4). From Ahaṁkāra through Shakti with Gu*n*a and Dos*h*a (5) urged by Kāla, sound is produced and from sound, ether (Ākāsha) ; from ether, air (Vāyu) ; from air, fire (Agni) ; from fire, water (Jala) ; and from water, earth (P*ri*thivī). The Ma*nd*ala of ether is circular and of air hexagonal (6) ; of fire triangular ; that of water resembles a crescent moon and that of earth is square. Ether contains air, and air, fire ; fire contains water, and water, earth ; and in earth is all that is moving and motionless in the universe (7). From Ahaṁkāra also issue the five organs of action (Karmendriya), namely the anus, feet, genitals, mouth and hands the functions of which are excretion, walking, procreation, speech and the power to hold ; the five organs of knowledge (Jnānendriya), viz., eye, ear, nose, tongue and skin ; and the internal sense (Manas).

(From the combination of these elements the whole material world or Prapancha is produced) (8). Mūlaprak*ri*ti is Prak*ri*ti only ; but Mahat, Ahaṁkāra and the five Tanmātras, these seven are both Prak*ri*ti and Vik*ri*ti (9). The remaining sixteen Tattvas, viz., the ten Indriyas, Manas, and

According to the Sāṁkhya the first produces the eleven senses, the last the Tanmātras or causes of the gross elements (bhūta). and the second produces both. According to the Shaiva school the first is said to produce Manas, the second the ten senses, and the third as above. See Bhāskararāya's Comm. on Lalitāsahasranāma v. 397.

2. The subtle, imperceivable (to ordinary sense), "thing in itself," of which there are five, viz., Shabda (sound), Sparsha (touch), Rūpa (form and sight), Rasa (taste), Gandha (smell) : that is, sound as such, touch as such etc..

3. Perceivable by the senses in those products which are made up of them.

4. So ether (Ākāsha) arises from the Shabda-Tanmātra and its Gu*n*a is Shabda. The word "element" is here retained for default of any better term though the "ether" etc., here spoken of are not to be confounded with the elements air, fire, earth, and water, in an English sense.

5. See post, p. 11 et seq.

7. That is, all things may be resolved into "earth" : the latter is sublimed into water, and water into fire and so on, until ether is reached which potentially contains them all.

8. The parentheses in English here and later on are added to the text in a form which gives continuity to the summary.

9. That is both cause and effect : they are each the effect of the preceding cause and the cause of the succeeding effect. Prak*ri*ti is Cause. "The seven" or Mahat, the five Mahābhūtas are purely Vik*ri*ti. They are called the sixteen Vikāras. The eight Prak*ri*tis are Avyakta (1), Mahat, Ahaṁkāra and the five Tanmātras the last seven being also Vik*ri*tis of Prak*ri*ti. The Kara*n*as (2) are Buddhi, Ahaṁkāra, Chitta and the Indriyas both Jnāna and Karma (3).

Nārāya*n*a then gives the divisions of time from the minutest, namely the Lava to the duration of Brahmā's life (or a period of 36,000 days and nights, each of 8,640,000,000 human years duration) as follows :—

1 Lava = the time it takes to pierce a lotus leaf with a needle.
30 Lavas = 1 Tru*t*i.
30 Tru*t*is = 1 Kalā
30 Kalās = 1 Kā*shth*ā.
30 Kā*shth*ās = 1 Nime*sh*a.
8 Nime*sh*as = 1 Mātrā which is equal to one breath (Shvāsa).
360 Shvāsas = 1 Da*nd*a or Nā*d*ikā.
2 Nā*d*ikās = 1 Muhūrtta.
30 Muhūrtas = 1 day and night.
30 days and nights = 1 month.
12 months = 1 human year.

1 human year = 1 day and night of the Devas.
360 days of the Devas = 1 celestial year.
12,000 celestial years = 1 age (Four Yugas).
1,000 Yugas = 1 day of Brahmā.
1,000 Yugas = 1 night of Brahmā.
30 such days and nights of Brahmā = 1 month of Brahmā.
12 months of Brahmā = 1 year of Brahmā.
100 years of Brahmā } = the period of the life of Brahmā.
The duration of Brahmā's life } = that of the outgoing breath (nishvāsa) of Kāla, (Nārāya*n*a).

The sun, moon, fire and all Devatās are in constant movement for the preservation of the world. (The close of the day of Brahmā or Kalpa is followed by a night of Brahmā and this is what is called the intermediate dissolution or Pralaya of which there are as many as there are nights in the life of Brahmā. At the close of Brahmā's life with the in-drawn breath of Kāla there is the great dissolution or Mahā-pralaya). "At the time of dissolution", says Nārāya*n*a, "all the universe re-enters Prak*ri*ti".

Nārāya*n*a then treats of the generation of bodies. In Prak*ri*ti when moved by Kāla, there are four kinds of bodies, namely, those which spring from the ground (Audbhida) those from moisture (Svedaja); those which issue from eggs (A*nd*ottha) and lastly such as have their origin in the Ahaṁkāra and the five Tanmātras are both cause and effect ; and the "sixteen" or the eleven senses (Indriya) including Manas and the five elements (bhūtas) are effects only. Puru*sh*a is neither cause nor effect. All effects exist in their causes. Prak*ri*ti and Puru*sh*a have themselves no cause.

1. Mūlaprak*ri*ti or unmanifested Prak*ri*ti whom the Pancharātra Agama calls "the one Mother of the universe the Mother of the Scriptures, Sarasvatī who has no origin." Vyakta on the other hand is Mahat and the other categories for they are manifested.

2. A Kara*n*a is that by which another thing is done, an instrument or agent.

3. The inner agents (antah-kara*n*a) are Buddhi, Ahaṁkāra, Chitta and Manas which sums up in itself and presides over the ten outer agents or senses (Indriyas) of knowledge and action.

uterus. Motionless things (such as trees, etc.), are called Audbhidas as they pierce through the ground. The Svedajas originate from the combination of the five elements. The A*nd*ajas or A*nd*otthas are produced by Shukra (semen) and Sho*n*ita (female ovum), and are formed into a ball. The Jarāyuja sprung from the uterus is the result of sexual intercourse. It is born with a body which contains the twentyfour Tattvas. Vāyu ("air") or nerve force takes the discharged semen and then mingles it with the seed of the Sho*n*ita. The seed of the female is called Māyīya and that of the male is Kārmaka. The uterine air nourishes the united seeds (Bīja) which are called Ā*n*ava and in which, in subtle forms, the twenty-four Tattvas exist. If there be a preponderance of Sho*n*ita the child becomes a female; if the proportions are even the child becomes a hermaphrodite and when Shukra predominates then the child becomes a male. The combined seeds in the course of the day by the action of air, fire and water solidify into a body the size of the mother's thumb Next day the embryo becomes a frothy body (budbudākāra). In the course of fifteen days it becomes quadrangular in shape and draws nourishment from the food taken by the mother. In time by the action of Vāyu (in the uterus) a straight long Nā*d*ī (nerve or artery) called Sus*h*umnā is produced. The mouth of the Nā*d*ī is downward (that is, in the Mūlādhāra). There is a Nā*d*ī on each side of it. That on the left is I*d*ā and that on the right is Piṁgalā. With these seven other Nā*d*īs are connected. I*d*ā, connected with the left scrotum, encircles Sus*h*umnā, passes by the right hip, goes to the heart—and thence passing by the left shoulder proceeds to the right nostril. Piṁgalā originating from the right scrotum goes in a similar way to the left nostril.

The other Dhamanīs (Nā*d*īs) above mentioned are Gāndhārī, Hastijihvā, Pus*h*ā, Alambus*h*ā, Yashasvinī, Shaṁkhinī and Kuhu. These are ramified all over the body. The embryo continues to increase drawing its nourishment from the food taken by the mother through a Nā*d*ī which is attached to the wall of the uterus. As it goes on increasing it receives a part (Kalā) of the Supreme Light (Paraṁ jyoti*h*) and this Kalā is consciousness (Ks*h*etrajnatā). The body which is thus possessed of consciousness is compounded of the elements (Bhautika) and has qualities of its own (Sagu*n*a). In the case of the male the testicles fully exist; but in the case of the hermaphrodite only slightly. The female embryo has none.

Besides the central Nā*d*ī Sus*h*umnā there are various other Nā*d*īs with branches and sub-branches and altogether they are 350,000 in number. Vāyu (v. post p. 11) passes through the body by means of these Shirās (Nā*d*īs). Vāyu is spread all over the body from the Mūlādhāra upwards proceeding along I*d*ā and Piṁgalā towards the nostrils and thereafter stops at a distance of twelve fingers breadth therefrom. There is a constant upward and downward movement of Vāyu along the paths of the sun and the moon (1). Vāyu goes to the north by the left ; to the south by the right. Different views are held about this consciousness (Chetanā). Some speak of it as the effect of Shukra and Sho*n*ita ; others as produced by the food taken by the mother. Others again say that it is the product of the Rasa (essence, juice) of the food or lymph chyle. Some speak of it as the effect of Karma ; others as a manifestation (Vyāpti) of the Paraṁ Dhāma (Supreme Light). Some again say that the body and the Ātmā of the father repeatedly act and re-act the one upon the other with the result that the lustrous Supreme Light is communicated by Māruta (Vāyu) to the Shukra as it were the light from one lamp to another. Others say that when the material body of elements (Bhautika) is born the Jīvātmā comes from somewhere and enters it (2).

Nārāya*n*a then says that the great (Mahīyasī) Prak*ri*ti is distinguished by the Gu*n*as (Gu*n*abhinnā) and is Trido*sh*ā (v. post). She pervades and possesses the qualities (Gu*n*a) of the five elements. The seven substances or fundamental principles (v. post) are Her characteristics. She is Saptadhātubhinnā. She is in the Indriyas : both in the five Karmendriyas, and in the five Jnānendriyas. She is Panchabuddhiprabhāvinī. She issues from the unmanifested state when quickened by Her proximity to the Supreme Light. When She is well awakened by the Supreme Light then She is Manas and of great power and is in the state of certainty-uncertainty (Saṁkalpavikalpak*ri*tyā). When in the act of determining with certainty (nishchinute) then She is called Buddhi or determination. When She knows Herself as the knower She is Ahaṁk*ri*ti (Ahaṁkāra). When She withdraws into Herself (abhilīyate) She is Herself alone. When She the Great One moves to manifest Herself in Her different ways then the sound which issues upon the bursting of the Bindu becomes clearly perceptible.

CHAPTER II.

Matured in this way the embryo goes on increasing at every moment of time. It is first composed of six parts, viz., head, two hands, two legs, and the middle portion. Consciousness then enters these six parts. If the three Dosh*a*s viz., Vāta or Vāyu, Pitta, Kapha are favourable then eyes, nose, mouth, ears, cheeks, chin, chest, belly, breasts and so forth are formed.

[At this point it is necessary to make an explanatory digression. These three terms are generally translated air, bile, and phlegm. While, however, they have this significator they, however, mean a great deal more (1). Vāyu is not atmospheric air nor is it an effete material such as gas generated during the process of digestion. Sushruta defines it as a force which sets the whole organism in motion. It is the principal factor which determines the genesis, continuance and disintegration of the living body. Its vibration takes a course as the controller of the correlative functions of the system. Taking into consideration the various functions which the living body has to perform this Vāyu is classified into Prā*n*a, Apāna, Samāna, Vyāna and Udāna which are said to correspond with the divisions of functions performed by the cerebro-spinal and sympathetic nerves of Western physiology. The Tantras abound in description of the Nā*dī*chakras (nerve plexuses) and give detailed accounts of the motor, sensory, and mixed nerves according to differences in their functions and relations.

In Chapter XV of the Sūtrasthānam of the Sushruta it is said that the imparting of motion to the body (Praspandanam), the carrying of the sensations of the respective sense organs (Udvahanam), the passing down of food to its proper receptacles (Pūra*n*am), the separation of excretions from the assimilated food matter (Viveka), and the retention and evacuation of urine, semen, etc., (Dhāra*n*am) should be ascribed to the functions of the five kinds of Vāyu which support the body.

1. For what follows on the medical side I am indebted and refer my reader to the Sushruta Samhitā, an English translation of which with a very useful introduction has been published at Calcutta by Kavirāja Kunjalāla Bhish*a*gratna.

In short the term Vāyu not only means nerve-force but is extended to include any kind of electro-motor or molecular force (as when we speak of the Vāyu of the soil) though the term is now loosely applied to signify gas or air.

The functions of the Pitta consists in metamorphosing the chyle to protoplasmic substance and is thus said to correspond to the metabolism of Western physiology. It means both bile and metabolism of tissues as well as the bodily heat which is the product of the latter. All metabolic processes in the organism whether constructive or destructive are called Pitta which is said to be in the products of those processes whether serum, bile, blood, albumen, etc., which are either essential to the substance of the body or to the proper performance of any organic function. It also has five sub-divisions according to functions and locations, viz :— Pāchaka, Ranjaka, Sādhaka, Ālochaka and Bhrājaka ; or digestive heat or bile ; pigment ; rhythmic cardiac contractions ; the Pitta of sight and in the skin. The Sushruta Samhitā in the Chapter cited says that pigmentation (Ranjaka), digestion and metabolism of tissues (Pāchaka), the vitalisation and nutrition of protoplasmic cells (Oja*h*k*ri*t), origination of the faculty of intellection (1) (Medhāk*ri*t) (these last two coming under the common heading Sādhaka), the origination and preservation of eyesight (Ālochaka) and the germination of heat and maintenance of bodily temperature (Bhrājaka) are the functions of the five kinds of Pitta which contribute to the preservation of the body through its fiery or thermogenetic potency (Agni-karma).

Kapha or Shles*h*mā is also of five kinds the functions of which according to Sushruta are the lubrication of the interior of the joints ; contributing to the gloss of the body, to the formation of healthy granules in sores , to the size of the body ; building fresh tissues ; imparting a pleasant or soothing sensation to the body ; increasing its strength and giving firmness to the limbs and thereby contributing to the welfare of the body by supplying it with its watery element.

1. The Editor of the work last cited, after stating that Sādhaka which is situated in the heart indirectly assists in the performance of cognitive functions by keeping up the rhythmic cardiac contractions, says that it was perhaps this view of the heart's construction which predisposed many ancient Indian physiologists to hold it to be the seat of cognition (Buddhisthānam).

At every moment the animal body dies. The etymological significance of the term Sharīra (body) which comes from the root Shri "to wither up" testifies to ancient knowledge of the combustion which is taking place at every moment in the human system. The internal fires would unduly feed upon its constituent principles were it not for the cooling and watery principle of Shleshmā which surcharging it with its own essential humidity keeps intact the integration of its component molecules. The Rasa or lymph chyle which is formed out of the ingested food prevents the internal bodily fires from preying upon the vitals by coursing freely throughout the whole organism. The Rasa thus generated undergoes a kind of purification, the purified portion being called Prasādabhūta and the excreted portion Malabhūta. Kapha or Shleshmā is that portion of Rasa which fills all the intercellular spaces of the body thus holding them together in a kind of cooling embrace (1) and prevents the combustion which would otherwise have been caused by organic heat.

Thus "air" is the correlative, as "fire" and "water" are the sustentative functions which, with generation, constitute the threefold activities of living matter. The lymph chyle or Rasa produced by the digested food potentially contains the elements (Dhātu) which build up the human organism through physiological metamorphosis. Vāyu, Pitta and Kapha are thus fundamental principles of the human economy or the primary subtle dynamics of organic life, when in virtue of their correlative and sustentative functions, they ensure an equipoise among the different vital and physiological processes, essential to its perfect health. But when the equilibrium is disturbed, pathological conditions arise which form the esse of disease and then they are said to be transfromed into Doshas or morbific diathesis (2). They are denominated as Malas when observed in grosser or superficial principles of the organism producing those excretions or organic lesions which are the sphere of morbid anatomy. Thus Vāyu, Pitta and Kapha embrace both the biological and pathological principles of the organism. The same

1. The root Shlish means "to embrace." Vāyu comes from the root Vā (be move) and Pitta according to the auther cited comes from "tap" (to burn) from which he says it should be inferred that motion, heat, and union and integration are the respective attributes of the vital Vāyu, Pitta and Kapha or Shleshmā, (Vol. I. P. 195.)

2 Thus blood which is a fundamental substance (dhātu) of the organism may be designated a dosha when owing to congestion it produces a pathological condition.

principles which sustain the organism are transformed into the dynamics of disease and the grosser excretory changes and organic lesions which form the subject of morbid anatomy and are sometimes confounded with the disease itself. It is, therefore, incorrect to translate Vāyu, Pitta and Kapha as "air", "bile" and "phlegm" except under those circumstances in which they are transfromed into Malas but they are not "air", "bile" and "phlegm" in those planes of their functions which determine the genesis, growth and continuance of the organism as well as its death, decay and disintegration. These principles thus embrace the whole sphere of organic existence (1).]

The text then continues as follows: The embryo is moved by Vāyu at the time of delivery, It issues with its head downwards causing great pain to its mother. At that time its eyes and nose are (in the uterus which is itself steeped) in the filth of the mother's intestines and it repeatedly thinks of the thousands of sins committed by itself in previous births (which have caused it to be thus re-born). It is tormented by the heat of the mother's body and is smeared with her secretions. Its body which is rolled up into a ball is agitated by Vāyus moving in all directions. It is at this time that it longs for Liberation (Moks*h*a).

Before this period Prā*n*a and other Vāyus had lodged themselves in its body, Apāna and Prā*n*a now pull against one another. When Samāna fans the fire of digestion then Vyāna goes with the extract produced thereby (Rasa) all over the body. Udāna accompanies Prā*n*a. Nāga causes belching. Kūrmaka causes movement of the eyelids (1), K*ri*karaka causes hunger; Devadatta yawning; and Dhananjaya causes various sounds (Rava) meaning apparently motions in the body and does not leave it even after death. As there are ten airs, so there are ten fires in the body, Of these, seven fires are in the seven substances (Dhātus) and three in sweat (Sveda), phlegm (Kleda) and entrails (Antra). The Dhātus are skin (Tvak), blood (As*ri*k), fat (Meda), bone (2) (Asthi), flesh (Māṁsa), marrow (Majjā) and semen (Shukra). They are called Dūs*h*ya or that which is affected.

1 op cit of Kavirāja Kunjalāla Bhis*h*agratna whose exposition I have above condensed and re-arranged.

2. According to the Kāmikāgama cited by Bhāskararāya (Lalitā V. 116) the first five Dhātus are derived from Devī; and the last two together with breath and vitality (Jīva) from Shiva. The tenth substance is called Parāshakti.

Dos*h*a is that which affects and the Dos*h*as are Vāta, Pitta and Kapha (1). The universal spirit (Vishvātmā) is Samavāyī (2). Action shows whether it affects or is affected. Hunger and thirst, grief and ignorance, decay and death are known as the six Ūrmis and exist in Prā*n*a, Buddhi, and as characteristics of the body (Dehadharma). From semen originate marrow (Majjā), bone (Asthi) and nerve (Snāyu); from female ovum come skin (Tvak), flesh (Māṁsa) and blood (Sho*n*ita). These are the six (3) Kos*h*as of the body. In the Dhātus Rasa and so forth is matured (Pāka). With maturity Ojas is produced which is the eighth product (Dashā). [It is said in Part I of the Bhāvaprakāsha that "health and strength reside latent in the Oja*h* Dhātu as butter (Gh*ri*tam) lies latent in milk." What it is, is not certain. According to some it is albumen or glycogen. But the medical Editor of the Sushruta already cited says (Vol I., p. LIII) that the term has been used to denote that vital principle in the organism which is essential to the maintenance of a healthy combustion in its tissues and to the due performance of their normal functions and activities, no matter whether that principle is patent in the form of protoplasm, protoplasmic albumen, glycogen, or mucosin in accordance with the difference of their functions, geneses, and conditions of protoplasmic metabolism]. This Ojas according to the text seeks to attach consciousness (Ks*h*etrajnatā) to itself as oil seeks union with the lamp or the firmament the splendour of the thunderbolt. When fire is covered by a pot which has holes in it, the lustre of its flame issues through these apertures and illumines the surrounding space. In the same way the lustrous consciousness (Ks*h*etrajnatā) although covered by the body gathers knowledge through the different senses. Ether is in the ears, air in the skin, fire in the eye, water in the tongue and earth in the nostrils. This is how knowledge is acquired.

When Pitta moved by Vāyu dissolves the Dhātus and is itself dissolved, it also dissolves blood in Lasikā (4) and the dissolved Lasikā working forward in the direction of the skin issues in the form of particles of perspiration. When Kapha is moved upward by Vāyu and Pitta then there is Praseka of the mouth and nose—that is, apparently these organs function by salivation, dribbling, running at the nose and so forth.

Here follow some verses dealing with diseases and their causes. Thus from the taking of unwholesome food discharge from the penis (Prameha), strangury (Mūtrak*ri*chhra), diarrhœa (Graha*n*i) and other diseases arise.

It is next stated that after food of the six different tastes is introduced into the mouth it is made palatable by Kapha. The six kinds of taste of edible things are sweet, sour, salt, bitter, hot and astringent. Food first goes to the stomach (Āmāshaya) and then to the seat of bile (Pittāshaya) and through contact with it becomes pungent (Ka*t*uka). Entering the intestines it is matured by the bile. The essence (Rasa) which is produced by the process of digestion assumes the form of blood and so forth and is carried through the body by Vāyu. The refuse is collected by Anila (air). This is called the excretion. It passes into the small intestines (Graha*n*ī) and remains there for some time when it passes out by way of the anus. In a similar manner the watery part passes through the thin Nā*d*īs which spread all over the body into the bladder (Vasti). Vasti is the recipient (Ashaya) of urine (Mūtra) and is bent in shape like a bow. The water which passes out of it is called urine.

The embryo (Jantu) covered by the caul (Jarāyu) is moved by the Vāyu into the uterine passage. It is the way of all sinful beings that they strive hard to come out of the womb. "Oh Lotus-born (Brahmā)" says Nārāya*n*a, "the ways (V*ri*tti) of men are various and wonderful". It is then born and shakes with fear. It yawns and suffers from fever. It breathes heavily and cries through its terror.

The text then proceeds to deal with what is called the Bhāvas or states of sound (1). The Bhāva which first arises in the lowest Tāttvik centre, the Mūlādhāra, is called

1, The whole of this verse occurs in the Alaṁkara-Kaustubha as quoted in the Shabdakalpadruma with the difference that the word Tāra is substituted fo Bhāvu.

[The text epeaks of four states of sound. Acording to Padmapāda the first state Parā is divisible into four parts (pada), namely, Shūnyā, Saṁvit, Sūks*h*mā and Parā—See page 34 of Text.]

CC0. In Public Domain. Jangamwadi Math Collection, Varanasi

Parā (1). In its next state it is Pashyantī (2). When it reaches the heart (H*ri*daya) and is united with Mā or Buddhi it is called Madhyamā (3). Then in the mouth and with the desire for utterence it is known as Vaikharī (4) or uttered speech. From this last arises by the action of air (Pavana) all the letters (5).

The letters are not clearly manifested because the necessary apertures have not appeared such as the throat and the like. Until these come into existence and become the seats of pronunciation the letters remain in their place of origin (Var*n*avyaktisthānasaṁstha). When the embryo reaches the stage (Bhāva) in which the thought arises, "I am knower" or "It is I who know (Jnātā'smi)" it acquires Buddhi, Ahaṁkāra and Manas. Consciousness thus increases by degrees and causes the child to become attached to its mother, father and kinsmen. Drinking abundantly of the mother's milk it cries out when it desires to suck the breasts again. The sight of father, brother and uncles makes the child happy. Through this arising attachment to the world (Saṁsāra) the child forgets its actions in previous births, the agony endured in the mother's womb, and the pain caused on its delivery therefrom. When troubled it calls to its mother in half-formed words. These words are indistinct like the confused murmur of Ku*nd*alinī (6) in the Mūlādhāra (7).

The aspects of Ku*nd*alinī are various. She, in Her threefold aspect, is the imperceptible omnipresent Shakti who is Kāma (ईं), Agni (र), Nāda (ह). She is Tāra (8). Some call Her Shakti, others the Paramātmā (9).

1, In the bodily aspect (Adhyātma) the Kāra*n*abindu resides in the Mūlādhāra as the Shakti Pi*nd*a Ku*nd*alinī. Here it is in its non-differentiated condition. The Shabdabrahman remaining here is called Parā sound.

[Padmapāda says that there are seven stages of sound.]

2. That is when it proceeds with slight motion (Sāmānyaspanda) from the motionless (ni*h*spanda) state as far as the navel chakra (Ma*n*ipūra) and is associated with Manas. According to some accounts the Svādhi*sh*t*h*āna is substituted for Ma*n*ipūra. Bhāskararāya Lalitā, v. 80.

3. As the former sounds possessed the nature of the Kāra*n*a and Kārya Bindus respectively, it is here in the Nāda state endowed with more definite motion (Vishes*h*aspanda). ib.

Her threefold aspect is that of the three Gu*n*as, the three Dos*h*as (1), three colours (2) ; Trayī (3), the three Lokas (4), the three lines (Trirekhā) (5). She is Tāra because She saves (Tāra*n*a), and Shakti because She is the support (Dh*ri*ti) of all.

In Her fourfold aspect She manifests as the Sūks*h*ma Kara*n*as (6) ; Jāgrat etc. (7).

In Her fivefold aspect She is represented by all things which are classified by five ; such as the five groups (Vargas) of letters ; the five colours (8) and the five Vāyus. (9)

In Her sevenfold aspect She is the component parts of Tāra (13), namely, A, U, M, Bindu, Nāda, Shakti and Shānta, and the component parts of H*ri*llekhā (14) or H, R, Ī, Bindu, Nāda, Shakti and Shānta. In Her eightfold aspect She is the eight Prak*ri*tis (1), the eight Vasus (2), the eight points of the compass (3) and the eight Mothers (A*sht*amātara*h*) (4). The text then continues with the ten-fold aspect as manifested in the ten directions (5) and so forth ; the twelve-fold aspect as in the signs of Zodiac and the great twelve syllabled Mantra. Finally Shakti manifests in the fifty-fold form as the fifty letters of the Sanskrit alphabet.

CHAPTER III.

This Chapter deals with the letters of the Alphabet, which are of a three-fold character, lunar (Saumya), solar (Saura), and fiery (Āgneya). The vowels are lunar, the consonants (Sparsha) other than the Vyāpakas (6) are solar and the latter are fiery.

The letters A (अ) to Visarga (:) are vowels (Svara) some of which are short and others long. The short (Hrasva) vowels are, A (अ) I (इ) U (उ) Ri (ऋ) Lri (ऌ) and Bindu (°). The long (Dīrgha) vowels are Ā (आ) Ī (ई) Ū (ऊ) Rrī (ॠ) Llri (ॡ) and Visarga (:). The vowels E (ए) Ai (ऐ) O (ओ) and Au (औ) are not mentioned in the text probably because E (ए) is formed by long or short A (अ,आ) with long or short Ī (इ,ई) ; (ऐ) Ai by long or short A with E (ए) ; O by long or short A with long or short U ; and Au (औ) by long or short A with O. The short vowels A (अ) I (इ) U (उ) and Bindu (°) are masculine (Puṁ) : the long vowels Ā (आ) Ī (ई) and Ū (ऊ) and Visarga (:) are feminine (Strī); and the vowels Ri (ऋ) Rri (ॠ) Lri (ऌ) and Llri (ॡ) are neuter (Napuṁsaka). The text mentions the last four and the Prapanchasārasambandhadīpikā the other vowels (7).

7. According to the Dīpikā these four appear (ayanasthiti) in Su*sh*umnā when Prā*n*avāyu is in that Nā*d*ī ; and by Ri and Lri there is outgoing breath (dak*shin*āyana) and by Rri and *Llr*ī ingoing breath (uttarāya*n*a).

These four exist in two states according as they are in the right or left nostril. When Prā*n*a is in the right nostril there is what is called Dak*sh*i*n*āyana and outgoing breath, and when in the left nostril Uttarāya*n*a and ingoing breath. The five short vowels manifest (1) when Prā*n*a is in the right, and the five long vowels when it is in the left nostril (2). Bindu and Visarga whose manifestations are dealt with later are the Sun and Moon respectively.

The Sparsha Var*n*as the last letter of which viz., Ma (म) is the Sun and the Ātmā (3), are divided into five groups (Varga) of five letters each. The twenty-four letters (4) are the twenty-four Tattvas. The whole twenty-five letters are therefore both solar as governed by Ma the sun and elemental (Pānchabhautika).

The Vyāpakas are divided into two groups of five letters each (5), and are Fiery (Āgneya) and Pānchabhautika. They are so called because in union with the vowels (Svara) they emanate from "moon" (Shashī), "sun" (Ina) and "fire" (Agni).

From the letters of the alphabet there arise thirty-eight Kalās (6) ; Sixteen lunar (Saumya) Kalās come from the vowels ; twelve solar (Saura) Kalās come from the twenty-four conjoined Sparshas ; and ten fiery (Vahnija) Kalās from the Vyāpakas. From these Kalās the Sādhaka attains his

The Kalās are the various parts into which the Prak*ri*tic substance is considered as being divided. In every creation of the world it is said that Mūlaprak*ri*ti assumes the different gradations of Amsharūpi*n*i, Kalārūpi*n*i and Kalāmsharūpi*n*ī or manifests Herself in portions, (such as Durgā, Lak*sh*mī, Sarasvatī), in parts ('such as Pu*sh*ti, Tu*sh*ti and other secondary Devīs) and portions of parts and further sub-divisions such as all women-kind who are all venerable as manifestations of the Mahāprak*ri*ti. See H. H. Wilson's Essays on the Religion of the Hindus, pp. 245, 246, Vol. I. Here the connection between the various (letters) and the Kalās is shown and these Kalās are unfolding qualities of their cause.

desired aim. From the letters of the Tāra (1) originate the all pervading fifty Kalās which can be divided according to the five elements (Bhūtas). From these (2) originate the Shaktis and Mātr*i*s (3) and Mūrtis of Vis*h*n*u* and Rudra respectively; as also the herbs and vegetable substances (Os*h*adhi) (4).

The lunar Kalās arising from the vowels and which grant the fulfilment of desires (Kāmadāyinī) are Amr*i*tā, Mānadā, Pus*h*ā, Tus*ht*i, Pus*ht*i, Rati, Dhr*i*ti, Shashinī, Chandrikā, Kānti, Jyotsnā, Shrī, Prīti, Aṁgadā, Pūr*n*ā, Pūr*n*āmr*i*tā.

The twelve solar Kalās which give wealth (Vasudā) connected with the letters commencing with Ka bha (कभ) and ending with *Th*a-*d*a (ठड) (5) are Tapanī, Tāpanī, Dhūmrā, Marīchi, Jvālinī, Ruchi, Sus*h*umnā, Bhogadā, Vishvā, Bodhanī, Dhāri*n*ī Ks*h*amā.

The ten Kalās issuing from "fire" which are connected with the Vyāpakas and which grant Dharma (Dharmapradā) are Dhūmrā, Archi*h*, Us*h*mā, Jvalinī, Jvālinī, Visphuliṁginī, Sushrī, Surūpā, Kapilā, Havyakavyavahā. These make 38 Kalās for the fifty letters.

The text then proceeds to deal with Kalās of the Pra*n*ava. The ten Kalās which arise from Akāra (अ) (6) (Akāraprabhavā) which are Brahmā-born (Brahmajātā) and creative are *Srisht*i *R*iddhi, Smr*i*ti, Medhā, Kānti, Laks*h*mī, Dhr*i*ti, Sthirā, Sthiti, Siddhi.

The ten Kalās arising from Ukāra (उ) (Ukārotthā) which are Vis*hn*u-born (Vis*hn*u-jātā) and preservative are Jarā, Pālinī, Shānti, Aishvarī, Rati, Kāmikā Varadā, Hlādinī, Prīti, Dīrghā.

The ten Kalās issuing from Makāra (म) are Rudra-born (Rudrajātā) and destructive and are Tīks*hn*ā, Raudrī, Bhayā, Nidrā, Tandrā, Ks*h*ut, Krodhinī, Kriyā, Utkārī, Mr*i*tyu.

1. Oṁkāra from which all the letters have originated.

These Kalās of Tāra according to the Dipikā manifest in the workings of Prakr*i*ti (Sarvagā*h* prakr*i*tikāryavyāpinya*h*).

2. There are variant readings, viz., tebhya*h* and tābhya*h* ; if the first then the letters are meant and if the second the Kalās.

3. The Shaktis and Mothers of the various manifestations of Vis*hn*u and Rudra ; the Shaktis of the latter being called Mātr*i*s.

4. V. post.

5. That is the first and last letter other than Ma, the second and last but one and so on are taken together, there being in all 24 letters. Thus :—Ka-Bha कभ) ; Kha-Ba (खब) ; Ga-Pha (गफ) ; Gha-pa घप) ; Nga-na (ङन) ! Cha-Dha (चध) ; Chha-Da (छद) ; Ja-Tha (जथ); Jha-Ta (झत) ; Nya-*n*a : (ञण) ; *T*a-*Dh*a (टढ) ; *Th*a-*D*a (ठड).

6. Which is in Oṁkāra which represent Brahmā just as Ukāra, and Makāra dealt with post stand for Vis*hn*u and Rudra.

Bindu has four Kalās, viz., Pītā, Shvetā, Aru*n*ā and Asitā.

The sixteen Kalās issuing from Nāda are Niv*ri*tti, Prati*shth*ā, Vidyā, Shānti, Indhikā, Dīpikā, Rechikā, Mochikā, Parā, Sūks*h*mā, Sūks*h*māmr*i*tā, Jnānāmr*i*tā, Āpyāyinī, Vyāpinī, Vyomarūpā, Anantā. These make 50 in all.

The text then proceeds to deal with the Vis*hn*a-mūrtis and Shaktis which have Vais*hn*ava names and the Rudra-mūrtis and Māt*ris* with Shaiva names. The Vais*hn*ava forms (Mūrtis) of the Vyanjana Var*n*as (1) are thirty-five in number, viz., Chakrī, Gadī, Shārṁgī, Kha*d*gī, Shaṁkhī, Halī, Mus*h*alī, Shūlī, Pāshī, Aṁkushī, Mukunda, Nandaja, Nandī, Nara, Narakajit, Hari, K*rishn*a, Satya, Sātvata, Shauri, Shūra, Janārdana, Bhūdhara, Vishvamūrti, Vaiku*nth*a, Purus*h*ottama, Balī, Balānuja, Bāla, V*ris*haghna, V*ris*ha, Haṁsa, Varāha, Vimala and N*ri*siṁha.

The Vais*hn*ava Shaktis (2) of the consonants are Jayā, Durgā, Prabhā, Satyā, Cha*nd*ā, Vā*n*ī, Vilāsinī, Virajā, Vijayā, Vishvā, Vinadā, Sūtadā, Sm*ri*ti, *Ri*ddhi, Sam*ri*ddhi, Shuddhi, Bhukti, Mukti, Mati, Ks*h*amā, Ramā, Umā, Kledinī, Klinnā, Vasudā, Vasudhā, Parā, Parāparāya*n*ā, Sūks*h*mā, Sandhyā, Prajnā, Prabhā, Nishā, Amoghā and Vidyutā.

The Vais*hn*ava-mūrtis of the vowels are Keshava, Nārāya*n*a, Mādhava, Govinda, Vis*hn*u, Madhusūdana, Trivikrama, Vāmana, Shrīdhara, H*ris*h*ī*kesha, Padmanābha, Dāmodara. Vāsudeva, Saṁkars*han*a, Pradyumna, Aniruddha ; 16 in all. The Vais*hn*ava Shaktis of the vowels are Kīrti, Kānti, Tus*ht*i, Pus*ht*i, Dhr*i*ti, Ks*h*ānti, Kriyā, Dayā, Medhā, Hars*h*ā, Shraddhā, Lajjā, Laks*h*mī, Sarasvatī, Prīti, Rati ; 16 in all.

The Rudra-mūrtis of the vowels are Shrīka*nth*a, Ananta, Sūks*h*ma, Trimūrti, Amareshvara, Arghīsha, Bhāvabhūti, Tithi, Sthā*n*u, Hara, Jhi*nt*īsha, Bhautika, Sadyojāta, Anugraheshvara, Akrūra, Mahāsena ; sixteen in all.

The Rudra-mūrtis, of the consonants are Krodhīsha Cha*nd*esha, Panchāntaka, Shivottama, Ekarudra, Kūrma, Ekanetra, Chaturānana, Ajesha, Sharva, Someshvara, Lāṁgalī, Dāruka. Ardhanārīshvara, Umākānta, Ās*h*ā*dh*ī, Da*nd*ī, Adri, Mīna, Me*sh*a, Lohita, Shikhī, Chhagala*nd*a, Dvira*nd*a, Mahākāla, Kapālī, Bhujaṁgesha, Pi*n*ākī, Kha*d*gīsha, Vaka, Shveta, Bhr*i*gu, Nakulī, Shiva, Sambartaka ; 35 in all.

The Rudramātris of the vowels are Pūrnodarī, Virajā, Shālmalī, Lolākshī, Vartulākshī, Dīrghaghonā Sudīrghamukhī, Gomukhī, Dīrghajihvikā, Kundodarī, Ūrdhvakeshi, Vikritamukhī, Jvālāmukhī, Ulkāmukhī, Shrīmukhī, Vidyāmukhī, or 16 in all.

The Rudra-mātris of the consonants are Mahākālī, Sarasvatī, Sarvasiddhi, Gaurī, Trailokyavidyā, Mantrātmashaktī, Bhūtamātā, Lambodarī, Drāvinī, Nāgarī, Vaikharī, Manjarī, Rūpinī, Vīrinī, Kotarī, Pūtanā, Bhadrakālī, Yoginī, Shaṁkhinī, Garjinī, Kālarātri, Kurdinī, Kapardinī, Mahāvajrā, Jayā, Sumukeshvarī, Revatī, Mādhavī, Vārunī, Vāyavī, Rakshopadhārinī, Sahajā, Lakshmī, Vyāpinī, Māyā ; 35 in all.

The text here says that three kinds of Nyāsa (1) [with the Kalās and Mūrtis named] have been described as above.

Then follows the names of the fifty Oshadhis (herbs) such as Chandana (sandal), Kuchandana (red sandal), Aguru (fragrant aloe), Karpūra (camphor) and so forth.

The letters are expelled through the Sushumnā channel by air through the mouth by means of the throat and other organs (2). Utterance is of three kinds Udātta, Anudātta, and Svarita (3). also classed as Hrasva, Dīrgha and Pluta according to Mātrā

CHAPTER IV.

This Chapter deals with the Bīja Hrīṁ (which is commonly known as the Māyā Bīja). This Bīja is also called Nāda, Prāna, Jīva, Ghosha, Hrillekhā, etc. It is composed of the letters Ha (ह) (4), Ra (र), Ī (ई) (5) and Bindu (°) (6).

1. The Kalās are (a) the 38 (b) the 50 in Oṁkāra named and the Mūrtis (c) the Vaishnavamūrtis and Shaktis and the Rudramūrtis and Mātris.

2. Kanthādisthānaghattitāh ; throat (Kantha), chest (Uras) head (Shiras) root of the tongue (Jihvāmūla), teeth (Danta), nose (Nāsikā), lips (Oshtha), and palate (Tālu).

3. The Dīpikā cites authority to show that the first kind burns up sins (dahati pāpāni) ; the second grants moksha (mokshapradāyaka) and the last gives pleasure to the mind (āpyāyana). See Shāradā tilaka ch. I. 66 and ch. II. 5 and notes thereunder.

4. The Prapanchasārasambandhadīpikā referred to post as the Dīpikā says the Ha is Kritakritya, i.e., all pervading.

5. Kāryakāranavāchimāyā according to the Dīpikā, "Māyā manifesting instrument and effect."

6. Satataṁ : or "the over existing one" according to the Dīpikā. Bhāskā-

Hakāra Bīja is Prā*n*ātmaka because it con notes the Paramātmā in conjunction with Māyā which is implied by the word Prā*n*a (1).

From Hakāra originate the vowels A (अ) to Ū (ऊ) and the six Ūrmis (2). The Mahāvi*shn*u adds "From Hakāra have you (that is, Brahmā, Hari or Vi*shn*u, Īshvara or Shiva) originated and it exists in all animate beings enveloping and permeating the Brahmā*nd*a (universe) with all that is moving and motionless therein." From Repha or Rakāra (र) originate the letters Ri (ऋ), Rrī (ॠ), Lri (ऌ), Llrī (ॡ) and the four Gu*n*as (3). From Īkāra (ई come the remaining six vowels including Bindu and Visarga and its Gu*n*as are the four Kara*n*as (4), Saṁghāta (5) and Chetanā. (6)

From the vowels the consonants from Ka to K*sh*a (क—क्ष) originated.

The Mahāvi*shn*u proceeds to establish the identity of the Devatā of this Bīja (that is, Bhubaneshvarī) (7) with Ku*nd*alī and Haṁsa*h* and then to the realization of the Mahāvākya "So' haṁ" (सोऽहम्) (8). He then says that if Sa (स) and Ha (ह) of "So' haṁ" be eliminated we then get Oṁ (ओं) or the Pra*n*ava. If the latter be disjoined into its component parts then from its end (म) we get the elements beginning with Kha (ether) ; from its middle (उ) the sun and other lustrous substances ; and from the first part (अ) all sounds. This Shakti (Ku*nd*alī or Bhuvanesvarī) is the Pārameshvarī Shakti and produces all sounds and their meanings and therefore comprises all the 24 Tattvas. She is Savitā or the rarāya citing the Mahāsvachchhanda Tantra says (Comm. Lalitā. v. 70) that there are eight notes (var*n*a) above the Bindu which in the order given are more and more subtle, viz., Bodhinī, Nāda. Nādānta, Mahānāda, Vyāpikā Shakti, Ānjī, Samanī, Unmanī.

1. So the Devī is addressed in the Lalitā as Hrīṁkāri where the Commentator loc. cit. says (citing the Svatantra Tantra) "She it is who does creation, preservation and destruction."

2. Hunger, thirst, sorrow, ignorance (moha) decay and death.

3. Touch (sparsha), Form or Sight (rūpa), Taste (rasa) and Smell (gandha).

4 Manas, Buddhi, Ahaṁkāra and Chitta.

5. This is according to the Dīpikā—Deha or body.

6 Kāryārtha-kāra*n*a-samūha-gata chidābhāsa, that is, apparently the Chit-quickening Prak*ri*ti to be the cause of all functioning.

7. Ruler of the fourteen worlds (Bhuvanas). The Deity indicated by the Mantra Hrīṁ. See as to other meanings Bhāskararāya's Comm. Lalitā. v. 69 citing Tripurā. siddhānta and the Gha*t*ārgalayantra Chapter in the Dak*shin*āmūrti Saṁhitā.

Creatrix of the world (Jagatprasavakāri*n*ī). She is Gāyatrī since it is She who saves (Trā*n*ana) the singer (Gāyaka). As the embodiment of the seven groups of letters (1), She is the seven planets. The Sun is the Lord of the vowels and Maṁgala, Shukra, Budha, V*ri*haṣpati, Shani (2) and the Moon are the Lords of the Ka-varga (क), Cha-varga (च), Ta-varga (ट), Ta-varga (त) Pa-varga (प) and Ya-varga (य), respectively.

As all the other letters originate from the vowels so the six planets (Grahas) originate from the Sun (Savit*ri*). As the six Vargas disappear in the vowels so the six components of Hrīṁ (3) and the six chambered Yantra disappear in Bhuvaneshvarī. She is the eternal, all-pervading Shakti who shines by Her own effulgence in the Sun (4).

From Her have originated the signs of the Zodiac. The Mahāvi*sh*nu then proceeds to show how from the different letters the different signs of the Zodiac have originated. In the same way He deals with the 27 Nak*sh*atras (5) or Lunar Zodiac, Ashvinī and others.

He concludes by saying that to know Her is to be freed from all the bonds of Karma (Karmabandha) and to attain the supreme state of Vi*shn*u (Vi*shn*o*h* paraṁ padaṁ prayāti).

CHAPTERS V & VI.

Henceforward the work deals largely with ritual which can only be described in an abbreviated form. These two Chapters deal with the subject of initiation (Dīk*sh*ā). It is so called because it produces a divine state of mind and body (Divyabhāva) and destroys (K*sh*i*n*uyāt) all evils (Duritāni). Mantra is so called because it gives understanding of the Tattva and saves (Trāyate) from fear.

1. The vowels and the vargas commencing with Ka-varga, v. post.
2. That is, Mars, Venus, Mercury, Jupiter, Saturn.
3. That is, Ha, Ra, Māyā (Ī), Nāda, Bindu and Shakti.
4. The Dīpikā says that here Her identity with Bharga is pointed out.
5. The system of the Nak*sh*atras or Asterisms was originally based upon the Sidereal revolution of the moon in about 27 days according to which a lunar zodiac of 27 asterisms near the ecliptic was made, so that in each night of the Sidereal month the moon entered a different asterism. Time was thus marked by defining the position of the moon without regard to its phases. See Dr. Barnett's Antiquities of India, p. 191, where the 27 Nak*sh*atras are fully given.

Then follows detailed rules regarding the selection of proper time and place for initiation, worship of the Vāstu Purus*h*a (1), sacrifice (Bali), offerings and so forth. The conclusion is that Guru, Devatā and Mantra should be realised as being one and the same (Aikyaṁ).

CHAPTER VII.

This portion of the work deals with rules relating to the Sādhanā of the Devī of Speech and the Japa of Her Mantra (2). Japa is preceded by Māt*ri*kānyāsa (2). The *Rish*i of this Māt*ri*kāmantra (3) is Brahmā. The metre (Chhanda*h*) is Gāyatrī. Sarasvatī is the Devatā and Her six limbs are the letters of the alphabet.

With the words, " I bow to Her the Bhāratī " (4) follows a Dhyāna or description of the Goddess (Devī) as She, in her gross (sthūla) form, is to be meditated on. She is seated on a lotus, three-eyed and of a transparent brilliancy. She is white as the moon and the jasmine flowers. The fifty different letters make Her face, hands, feet, belly and breasts which with Her buttocks are very large. On Her head are coils of hair and the crescent moon. She holds in Her right upper hand a rosary of Rudrāks*h*a beads (5) and with Her lower right hand makes Chintā-mudrā (6). In the left upper hand She holds a jar (of nectar) and in the lower left hand a book (7).

The nine Shaktis of Bhāratī are Medhā (understanding), Prajnā (wisdom), Prabhā (radiance), Vidyā (learning), Dhī (intelligence), Dh*ri*ti (constancy or steadiness), Sm*ri*ti (memory), Buddhi (power of conception), Vidyeshvarī (sovereignty of all learning).

The Sādhaka with revernt devotion should worship Bhāratī, Her Shaktis and Āvara*n*a Devatās (8) with fine perfume and flowers, incense and food.

3. That is, the letters A to Ks*h*a with the Bindu superimposed.

4. The Dīpikā says that the word Bhāratī here indicates that She is subtle and Nādātmaka (in the nature of Nāda) and the word " Her " (tām) indicates that She is the Parachidātmikā Bhuvaneshvarī.

5. Seeds of the Eleocarpus ganitrus with which Japa is done.

6. A name for the jnāna-mudrā or munual gesture so called.

The eight Mothers are Brahmā*n*ī, Māheshī, Kaumārī, Vai*shn*avī, Vārāhī, Indrā*n*ī, Chāmu*nd*ā, Mahālak*sh*mī.

CHAPTER VIII.

The first part deals with Prā*n*āgni Homa. It commences by directing the Sādhaka as to his posture and then to meditate on the Mūlādhāra (1) in the middle of which is the "essence of Shakti" (Shaktisattva) that is Ku*nd*alinī and is surrounded by Māyā Bījas (2). Inside the Mūlādhāra is a triangle and five Ku*nd*as (fire pits) in which are the five fires Āvasathaja, Sabhya, Āhavanīya, Anvāhārya and Gārhapatya. In these five Ku*nd*as the letters are mentally offered in Homa. The Vyanjanas are divided into 7 groups and the vowels into 2 groups of eight each. Each of these groups is called after one of the nine gems (Ratna) and directions are given as to which letters should be cast into which Ku*nd*a. By these offerings the Sādhaka realises his subtle body. Details are then given of the ritual of this Homa in which mental offerings of the senses (Indriyas) and so forth are made.

The second portion after the 26th verse deals with the worship of Sarasvatī ; Her Nyāsa, Pūjā, Japa, Homa and so forth. A Hymn to Sarasvatī is given in vv. 47-60.

CHAPTER IX.

Deals with the worship of the Devī Tripurā. She is called Tripurā, because, She is the Creatrix of the three Mūrtis (3) ; and is in the three Vedas ; She too on the dissolution of the three worlds fills all space ; and existed before the Three (4) were. Her Bījas are Aiṁ and Klīṁ (5).

1. The Chakra in the basic plexus. See my book "The Serpent Power" a translation of the *Shat*chakra-nirūpa*n*a published in the second volume of this series.

2. That is "Hrīṁ" v. ante.

3. So according to the Kālikā Purā*n*a, She is so-called because through the operation of Pradhāna Her body became threefold as Brahmā, Vi*sh*nu, Rudra. She is also three-fold because the Ma*nd*ala is triangular ; the Mantra has three syllables ; there are three states (avasthā) and so forth. Some other meanings are given in the commentary to v. 178 of the Lalitā where She is addressed as Tripurāmbikā. Similarly in the Shoda-shīstotra, She is addressed as Tripurādhivāsinī and Tristhā or "residing in the three" that is, the three-fold worlds, body, states of consciousness and so forth.

4. That is, existed before the three Devas of the Trimūrti.

5. The Vāgbhava and Kāma Bījas. She has other Bījas also.

The Dhyāna is given at v. 8. The Sādhaka is directed to worship the Pī*th*a, the Shaktis Vāmā and others and to draw the Navayoni-chakra and to then place a Kalasha (jar) on the Chakra and invoke the Devī therein. The Chakra is then described. The Shaktis and Māt*ri*kās and Bhairavas who are to be worshipped are named.

In vv. 23, 24, a description is given of a worship which has the effect of producing such amorous passion in the celestial female Spirits and Genii, Suras, Asuras, Siddhas, Yak*sh*as, Vidyādharas, Gandharvas, Bhujaṁgas (1) and Chāra*n*as (2) that they come to the Sādhaka "with gazelle-like eyes, breathing heavily, their bodies quivering with, and moist with the pearly sweat of, passion ; and throwing away their ornaments and letting their clothes fall from about them, bow themselves before him and offer to do his will".

CHAPTER X

Is concerned with the worship of Mūlaprak*ri*ti, Her Mantra, Homa, Abhi*sh*eka, Japa and Archana (3). For the purpose of worship She is materialised as Ambikā according to the directions of a Dhyāna which is given. She is there described as holding Pāsha (noose), Aṁkusha (goad) (4), I*sht*a (making the Varamudrā), Abhaya (making the Mudrā of that name) (5). An explanation is given of these four.

The rest of the Chapter is concerned with the ritual.

CHAPTER XI

Continues the same subject, and gives a description of Her Yantra (6), Gāyatrī, 16 Shaktis (7), 32 Shaktis (8), and 64 Shaktis (9) which are named.

1. That Nāgas or Serpent divinities.

Some further details regarding Her worship are set forth and then in verses 49-68 the following fine Hymn to Prak*ri*ti is given.

HYMN TO PRAK*RI*TI (1)

Be gracious to me, Oh Pradhānā (2)
Who art Prak*ri*ti (3) in the form of the elemental world (4)
Life (5) of all that lives,
With folded hands I make obeisance to Thee Our Lady (6)
Whose very nature and will it is to do (7)
That which we cannot understand (8).

A hymn is composed of sentences
And these of words with their terminations (9),

1. The primordial Shakti; see note 3 below.

2. Pra + dhā + ana*t* = pradhatte sarvam ātmani or that which contains all things in itself; the source and receptacle of all matter and form.

3. Pra + k*ri*ti, that is, She by whom all actions, that is, creation (s*rishti*) maintenance (sthiti) and destruction (laya) are done. Prak*ri*yate kāryādikam anayā. Pradhāna and Prak*ri*ti are one and the same under different aspects. Prak*ri*ti also means before (Pra) creation (k*ri*ti), k*ri*te*h* prārambho yasyā*h*-She from whom creation begins. The first is the one as the container of the material which goes to the making of the world of form and Prak*ri*ti is the One in its active aspect moulding into form the materia prima (to use an analogous though not altogether accurate term) of which as Pradhāna, It is the container.

4. Prapancha, that is, the Universe as composed of the five gross "elements" (mahābhūta) or ether (ākāsha), air (vāyu), fire (tejas), water (ap), earth (p*ri*thivī).

5. Prā*n*a which manifests in the breath of breathing things (prā*n*ī).

6. Prabho; the meaning of which is "one who can confer favours and show disfavour" (nigrahānugrahasamarthā).

7. It is Her very nature (prak*ri*ti) to be and to do, what She is and does. She cannot be otherwise and be Herself. She acts, and to do so is Her will and Her will is what She is.

8. The action of Prak*ri*ti is apratarkya, beyond all human discussion and conception, known only to Prak*ri*ti-Puru*sh*a and not to ourselves, who are but transformations (vik*ri*ti) and but limited manifestations of the immanent yet transcendent Cause.

9. In Sanskrit the root is not considered a word. It becomes only a word (padam) when the case or verbal termination is added. Thus bhū the root of the verb "to be" is not a pada but, bhavati, the third person singular present tense is such; Rāma is not a pada, but Rāma*h*, Rāmaṁ, Rāme*n*a, etc., are padas.

Words again consist of letters

Even Aja (3) Adhoks*h*aja (4) and Trīks*h*a*n*a (5),
Know not Thy Supreme form which is Māyā (6),
But pray to Thee in Thy gross form as Ruler (7),
Therefore so must I pray to Thee (8).

Salutation to Thee our Lady supreme over all (9),
Who art Bindu (10),
Obeisance to Thee the Paratattva (11),

1. Aks*h*ara or lettered sound is the gross manifestation of subtle sound or dhvani. Dhvani is Devī as Kulaku*nd*alinī. Mantra is therefore Devatā not only in its collective form, but in each of the letters which compose it. Aks*h*ara also means 'imperishable'.

2. Lit. "the Devī praises Herself with letters which are Herself because the power of speech is Herself." The Hymnist and the Hymn are but manifestation of the Supreme whom they invoke. The Jīva worships its inner ground or Paramātmā.

3. Aja "the unborn one" is an epithet applicable to Brahmā, Vis*h*n*u and Rudra but is generally and here used as a title of Brahmā the creative aspect of the trinity (trimūrti).

4. Adhoks*h*aja; which means "He from whom there is no fall (rebirth) when once attained"; or "He who is beyond the perception of the senses" (aks*h*a= indriya); Vāchaspatya Dict. It here means Vis*hn*u.

5. Trīks*h*a*n*a or "three-eyed" a term generally applied to Shiva who bears in His forehead the third eye of wisdom (jnāna-chaks*h*u*h*).

6. That by which the Brahman as Avyakta creating the Universe is able to make Itself appear to be different from what It really is.

7. Īshi tām. She is the ineffable Lord (Īshvarī) ruling the Universe Her creation. This ruling aspect which involves relation is Her gross aspect.

8. That is, if even these three great Devas can only worship the gross aspect, of greater necessity it is that the hymnist should do so. 9. Samasteshi.

10. From the Sachchidānanda Parameshvara with Prak*r*iti issued Shakti from Shakti came Nāda and from Nāda was born Bindu (Shāradātilaka, Ch. 1). This Bindu again has two aspects the Bindu or Purus*h*a aspect or "Haṁ" manifesting in breathing creatures (Prā*n*ī) as expiration and the visarga or Prak*r*iti aspect or "Sa*h*" manifesting as inspiration; the current of the life wave being called Hang cha sa*h* or the motion of Ha and Sa. See my book "The Serpent Power".

11. Lit. the supreme Tattva or prak*r*iti. In this edition the alternative reading "Ravatvena" has been preferred. As such the meaning is She is the Rava or sound which arises on the bursting of the Bindu. See ante p. 6.

Who art Pradhānā (1) and Mahattva (2),
Salutation to Thee Who art in the form of Ahaṁkāra (3).

Obeisance to Thee in the form of sound and ether,
Salutation to Thee in the form of touch and air,
Obeisance to Thee in the form of sight and fire,
Salutation to Thee in the form of taste and water,
Obeisance to Thee in the form of earth with its quality of smell (4).

Salutation to Thee in the form of the ear, skin, eyes, tongue, and nose (5),
And in the form of mouth, speech, arms, legs, organs of excretion and generation (6),
Salutation to Thee, Manas, Buddhi, Ahaṁkāra and Chitta (7),
Obeisance to Thee Who art in the form of the whole Universe:

1. See v. 1 note 2, p. 29.

2. Mahattva (Mahat-tattva) is that state of the vik*ri*ti of mūlaprak*ri*ti which when individualised is called Buddhi. The latter is one of the fourfold aspects of the anta*h*kara*n*a or mental organ, viz., manas (lower mind or sensorium), buddhi (higher mind the function of which is determination ; nishchayakāri*n*ī), ahaṁkāra (egoity, self-consciousness) and chitta (v. post, v. 6, n. 7).

3. See last note. The ahaṁkāra here referred to is however to be distinguished from that mentioned in verse 6. It is ahaṁkāra thought of as before its divisions into Taijasa, Vaikārika, and Bhautika.

4. Ether, air, fire, water, earth are the five gross elements (mahābhūta). They each have certain qualities or gu*n*a. These are sound, touch, sight (by and of light) taste and smell. Mahābhūta is the container or supporter (ādhāra) and that which is called its gu*n*a is the supported or contained (ādheya). It is through its gu*n*a that the mahābhūta is perceived by the senses (indriya). Thus, sound is that by which the invisible ākāsha is known. The Mahābhūta and its gu*n*a represent the objective and subjective aspects. As the world is the creation of mind, the shabda, sparsha, rūpa, rasa and gandha (sound, touch, sight, taste, smell) tanmātras are the cause of the mahābhūtas the former themselves deriving from the tāmasa ahaṁkāra.

5. The organs of sense (indriya) are of two kinds viz., Jnānendriyas or organs of sensation through which knowledge of the external world is obtained, viz., those mentioned in this line and Karmendriyas or organs of action by which that knowledge is applied, namely, those mentioned in the second line.

6. See last note.

7. See n. 2. These four are vik*ri*tis of the Devī.

Chittam is that by which one knows (Chetati anena iti chittam). According to the Vedānta it is the faculty of the mental organ (anta*h*kara*n*a) which contemplates and investigates into the subject-matter of thought—anusandhānātmikā anta*h*kara*n*a- v*ri*tti*h* iti vedānta*h*.

Who pervadest all
And yet art formless (1).

Thou art the Antarātmā (2),
Who by the Sun (3) upholdest all living creatures,
And Who by the Moon ever nourishes them.
Again assuming the appearance of Fire the carrier of oblations (4) Thou burnest :
Oh Mahādevī, verily do these three lights (5) and fires issue from Thee.

Assuming the form of Brahmā with active quality (6)
The four-headed one, seated on a shining white swan,
Thou dost create the world
Of which thou becomest the Mother.
Who is there indeed, Oh Supreme Ruler (7),
Who can imagine Thy supreme state (8) ?

Adorned with crown,
Resplendent with conch and discus (9)

1. The forms of the Mother of the Universe are threefold. There is first the supreme (para) form of which, as the Vi*sh*nuyāmala says, "none know" (see Ch. III, Shāktānanda Taraṁgi*n*ī); next Her subtle form as mantra or sound ; and thirdly Her gross form in the visible universe and in those embodied aspects or spiritual avatāras in which She presents Herself, for the benefit of the sādhaka who can only worship Her in such form See Author's "Shakti and Shākta" and "Hymns to the Goddess."

2. Ātmā derived from āt + manin, is that which continues to exist in all states (avasthā) commencing with jāgrat and following on in the others : svapna, sus*h*upti, and turīya, that is, the eternal Spirit. Āt = sātatya-gamane or that which is continually going ; that is, which never ceases to exist. But as the term ātmā has also other meanings in Sanskrit (such as effort, patience, buddhi, nature, manas, son, jīva, sun, hutāsana (fire) vāyu, body) the term which specifically describes the Spirit as the inner substance of all things is antarātmā or inner ātmā.

3. The Sanskrit expression is finer but untranslatable—ravitvena bhutvā antarātmā dadhāsi ; that is, who upholds "by Thy sun-ness." In the same way later we have chandramastvena "by Thy moon-ness."

4. Fire it is which while consuming oblations in their gross form carries them as nourishing food in subtle form to the Devas.

5. That is Sun, Moon and Fire corresponding with the Kriyā, Ichchhā and Jnāna Shaktis.

6. That is the rajas gu*n*a.

7. Īshī.

8. Lit. "You (alone) think upon (or know) Your supreme state."

9. Chakra. Both conch and discus are white and shining.

Thou, Oh Supreme Lady (7), art Sarasvatī (8),
The presiding Goddess of Speech,
Clad in white raiment (9),
Holding a rosary of Rudrāksha beads, a pen, and a jar of nectar,
Thou maketh the Chintā gesture (10)
Thou art The Three-eyed One
Bearing upon Thy matted hair (11)
The shining crescent moon.

1. That is Brahmā, Girisha, Kārtikeya, Vishnu, Varāha, Indra and Mahābhairava. Therefore the Matrikās are Brahmānī, Rudrānī, Kaumārī, Vaishnavī, Vārāhī, Aindrī and Mahābhairavī or Chāmundā. The Mātrikās who issued from Durgā during her battle with Shumbha and Nishumbha are variously enumerated ; usually eight are spoken of and sometimes nine ; others being Aparājitā and Nārasimhī. See Chanai, Ch. VIII.

2. The Devī as spouse of Shiva bears (as He does) the crescent moon.

3. These with the arrow and bow are Her weapons. The Yoginīhridaya says, "the noose is Ichchhāshkti, the goad Jnānashakti, and the bow and arrows Kriyāshakti." But the Tantrarāja says "Mind is the bow of sugarcane, desire the noose, attachment (rāga) the goad and the tanmatras the five arrows of flowers."

1. Bhedaprabhinnai*h* abhinne bindunādai*h* sashaktyākhyashāntai*h*. Shakti and Shānta are parts of the Bīja and are states of the Brahman which in its various aspects the mantra is. When referrible to the sādhaka of the mantra, Shakti is that allpervading allembracing energy which appears in him in the stage leading to and immediately preceding Shānta where all his wishes are realised without will or effort for he is himself that by which they are done. Shānta is ordinarily understood as implying that state in which there is neither happiness nor unhappiness, attachment or desire ; but the Shānta here spoken of is the essence (tanmātra) of that : and which appears in the Mok*sh*a stage when the supreme Ātmā is realised. As Comm, to v. 52 of the *Shat*chakranirūpa*n*a says Shānta is the Chidātmā.

2. Bhū*h*, Bhuva*h*, Sva*h*, Maha*h*, Jana*h*, Tapa*h*, Satyam.

3. Tala, Atala, Vitala, Sutala, Talātala, Mahātala, Rasātala.

4. The seven mountains called Kula Parvatas are Mahendra, Malaya, Sahya, Shuktimān, *Riksh*a, Vindhya, Pāripātra.

5. Of Salt (Lava*n*a), Sugarcane juice (Ik*sh*u), Wine (Surā or Madhu), Ghee (Ājya, Sarpi*h*), Curd (Dadhi), Milk (K*sh*īra or Dugdha) and Sweet Water (Udaka).

6. Which are the seven sages, Marīchi, Atri, Angirā*h*, Pulastya, Pulaha, Kratu and Vashi*shth*a. Or grahas are the seven planets excluding Rāhu and Ketu.

7. Jambu, Plak*sh*a, Shālmalī, Kusha, Krauncha, Shāka and Pu*sh*kara of which the world is composed.

8. Dhātu : that is, chyle (rasa), blood (as*ri*k), flesh (mamsa), fat (meda), bone (asthi), marrow (majjā) and semen (shukra) of the physical body.

9. Svara. The text here refers to *Shad*ja, *Rish*abha, Gāndhāra, Madhyama. Panchama, Dhaivata, Ni*sh*āda located in the Vishuddha chakra. See Introduction to "The Serpent Power". Tāntrik doctrine is expressed in terms of sound (shabda) and music is merely a species of it or grossly manifested sweet melodious sound. Musically considered the svaras are Sa, ri, ga, ma, pa, dha, ni (corresponding with the European scale c, d, e, f, g, a, b) which constitute the grāma or gamut. The intervals between these are the sub-tones or shrutis of which there are 22. The grāmas are threefold—low, middle and high or udārā, mudārā, tārā corresponding with the three svaras udātta, anudātta, and svarit ; pronounced from the navel, chest and head and called by the Mohammedan musicians nābhi (navel). bak*sh*a (chest), kapāla (head). As there are 7 tones and 3 grāmas there are 21 mūrchchhanās.

10. Maheshī. 11. Samaste. 12. Samastasvarūpe.

13. Samaste*sh*u vastu*sh*u anusyūtashakte ; lit. the power (shakti) which is "sewn into" or interweaved with all things. For nothing is or acts but by Her power and this existence and action is Her power that is Herself.

Who dost assume forms both gross and subtle
Thou art spoken of as memory and knowledge
And as the want thereof (1).

20

Let all our thoughts be ever of Thee,
Oh our Great Lady (2),
May all our speech be of, and all our hymn to, Thee,
May all we do (3) be homage to Thee.
Be ever gracious to and pardon me (4).

CHAPTER XII.

This Chapter gives an exposition of the worship of Shrī or Lak*sh*mī and states Her Bīja (5) and Dhyāna and the Japa and Homa in her Sādhana. Her nine Shaktis (6) are to be invoked round Her Pī*th*a. Verse 29 gives a Dhyāna of Her as Ramā and 32 Shaktis of Ramā are enumerated who should also be worshipped. The worship of Shrī leads to purity; bodily perfection and beauty, intelligence and devotion to Vi*sh*nu ; and not only the Sādhaka but his bed and all other things belonging to him are purified.

CHAPTER XIII.

At the commencement the Tripu*t*ā (7) Mantra is indicated. After doing Aṁganyāsa with that Mantra the

1. For Devī is avidyā (ignorance) as She is also vidyā (knowledge). Through the first She binds and by the second She liberates.

2. Maheshī.

3. That is all bodily action, eating, drinking, sexual intercourse, walking, sleeping etc., which should be offered to Her and thus divinised. In the same way the Hymn to Vi*sh*nu in the 21st Chapter of this work contains the fine line—Devesha karmasarvaṁ me bhavedārādhanaṁ tava—"Oh Lord of Devas, all my actions should be worship of Thee."

4. The Prapanchasāra then recites the fruits of this Hymn saying that he who does japa, pūjā and recites this hymn with reverence attains that which is the supreme wealth and abode. Whoever serves the injunctions becomes both yogī and bhogī, that is, he has according to Tantra both liberation and enjoyment.

5. Shrīṁ.

6. Verse 8.

7. An antargatā Devī of Tripurā. See Tripu*t*āstotra in Tantrasāra, translated with commentary at page 172 of Arthur and Ellen Avalon's "Hymns to the Goddess."

Sādhaka should meditate on the Devī as on a lotus seat in the heart lotus (1). After Pūjā to Her, Her Āvaraṇa Devatās should be worshipped. Her Japa is done 1,200,000 times (twelve lakhs). In vv. 4 and 5 Her Dhyāna is given. In v. 10, the Dharaṇī Bīja is indicated. The Rishi is Varāha, the Chhandaḥ is Nivṛit, and the Devatā is Dharaṇī. Then follows Tvaritā Vidyā who is so-called because She grants success to Her worshippers very speedily. The worshipper of this Tvaritā mantra is tempted by celestial damsels. If the Sādhaka overcomes these temptations then Devī Tvaritā grants all his desires. Totalāvidhi is described in vv. 64-66. Then Nityā Mantra is indicated and the mode of Her worship laid down. V. 84 says that (amongst other fruit secured by this Mantra) if he who is initiated therein thinks of a woman and makes Japa of this Mantra a thousand times, even when lying on his bed (2), then that woman becomes so maddened by the arrows of Madana the God of love that she comes running to him.

CHAPTER XIV

Deals with the worship of Durgā. Her Dhyāna is given in v. 4 In v. 7, Her nine Shaktis are given. Vv. 11 and 12 enumerate Her weapons, and another set of Shaktis. Again in v. 31 further Shaktis are given. One of the fruits of Her pūjā is declared to be the power to bring under control even the wives of Kings. Some warrior Shaktis are given in v. 72.

CHAPTER XV

Is concerned with the details of the ritual of the worship of Sārya (Sun) the Sāttvika aspect of Bhuvaneshvarī.

CHAPTER XVI

Indicates the Mantra of Chandra (Moon) and deals with His worship. V. 8 gives nine Shaktis of Chandra. At v. 25,

1. That is, not anāhata but the small Ishṭadevatā lotus below it.

2. That is, the mantra is so powerful that it may be recited with success under the easiest conditions.

the Agni mantra is indicated ; and at v. 30, the nine Shaktis of Agni are enumerated. The rest of the Chapter is largely concerned with the fruits of the various forms of worship. Chandra is the Rājasa and Agni the Tāmasa aspect of the Devī.

CHAPTER XVII

Treats of the worship of Mahāga*n*esha. Vv. 5-17 give the Dhyāna. V. 22 gives His nine Shaktis. These include Tīvrā, Jvālinī, Bhogadā, Kāmarūpi*n*ī, Ugrā, Tejovatī, Satyā, Vighnanāshinī.

CHAPTER XVIII

Contains the Manmatha (1) Mantra. The Dhyāna is in v. 4. His nine Shaktis (v. 6) are Mohanī (She who charms). Ks*h*obha*n*ī (She who perturbs), Trāsī (She who causes anxiety), Stambhanī (She who paralyzes), Ākars*h*i*n*ī (She who attracts), Drāvi*n*ī (She who softens), Āhlādinī (She who causes joy), Klinnā (She who moves the heart), Kledinī (She who moistens) (2). His Gāyatrī is given in v. 11, as follows :—Kāmadevāya vidmahe: Pus*h*pavā*n*āya dhīmahi: tānno' naṁga*h* prachodayāt. (3) The Mantra is at vv. 12-14 The 16 Āvara*n*a Shaktis are given at vv. 19-21. They are Yuvati (Youthfulness), Vipralambhā (Deception), Jyotsnā (Moonlight or Splendour), Subhrū (Beautiful eyebrows), Madadravā (Soften ing state of love), Suratā (Amorous play). Vāru*n*ī (Shakti of Varu*n*a) (4), Lolā (Agitation) (5), Kānti (Beauty) Saudāminī (Lightning), Kāmachhatrā (6) (all which induce passion)

1. "He who agitates the mind" or Kāmadeva "Deva of desire" the God of sexual desire whose mantra is Klīṁ. Other names of this Deity are Pradyumna "the powerful one" or "He who overcomes all," Kandarpa "He who fills the mind with happiness," Smara "He who pertubs or inflames" and (see pos.) Anaṁga "The bodiless one." At marriage and when a wife leaves her father's house to go to her husband for the first time petitions ware addressed to Him for children and marital happiness,

2. The above and the āvara*n*a Shaktis are simple examples of what is meant by a Devatā's Shaktis and are for this purpose enumerated.

3. "Let us know Kāma Deva ; let us meditate on Him the arrows of whose bow are made of flowers. May that Bodiless One direct us." Kāma is called the "Bodiless one" as He was consumed by the fire of Shiva when he sought to distract the latter from His yoga.

4. Quære.

5. Or fickle, lustiul : it may also mean the male genitals, as yoni is given post.

6. Chhatra ordinarily means umbrella ; or all covering things thus the season of spring or the sight of a beautiful woman would be Kāmachhatra.

Chandralekhā (The Digits of the moon) (1), Shukī (a female parrot (2), Madanā (Passion of love), Yoni (The female genitals), Māyāvatī (She who deludes). At v. 21 His sixteen servants are given, namely, Shoka (Heat or anguish), Moha (Delusion), Vilāsa (Coquetry or play with women), Vibhrama (Perturbation or confusion or amorous gestures), Madanātura (Helpless state induced by passion), Apatrapa (Shamelessness), Yuvā (Male youthfulness) (3), Kāmī (Amorousness), Chyutapus*h*pa (Mango blossom) (4), Ratipriya (Pleasant coition), Grīs*h*ma (summer) (5), Tapānta (Rainy season) (6), Ūrja (Autumn), Hemanta (Dewy season) (7), Shishira (winter), Mada (Spring). The text at vv. 24 and 25 says that at the corners of the Yantra of Madana should be worshipped the play of the amorous sidelong glances (8), the sensuous movements of woman's body (9), the Mādhavī creeper (10), Mālatī flower (11), the gazelle-like eye (Hari*n*āks*h*ī) and the entrance-ment of passion (12).

The text then describes (vv. 27 et. seq.) the union of husband and wife (13). The body of man is a manifestation of Ahaṁ·

2. A lovesick person as described in the Alaṁkārashātra keeps a parrot to whom he or she tells his feelings.

3. As yuvatī is a youthful woman.

4. Mangoes blossom mostly in spring the season of love, and one of the God's arrows is made of them. Jayadeva says :—"In spring the cuckoo gladdened by the sight of the mango buds calls sweetly in every forest Kuhu Kuhu. The wind from the Malaya mountain wafts the fragrance of cloves. To wound the heart of woman spring advances with Kāma whose bow is formed of flowers, his bowstring a row of bees, his arrow the budding mango shoot: K*r*is*h*na now gambols, but the separated lovers endure severe misery."

5. The seasons are companions of Kāmadeva ; v. post.

See brief discriptions of the six seasons extracted from different Sanskrit authors in Ward's View of the History, etc., of the Hindoos, (1818), Vol. I, p. 519. "In summer the earth through the fierceness of the heat is like a widowed woman in the bloom of youth (tormented by desire). The scorching wind is as the breath of the serpent Ananta at the churning of the ocean. The sun is like the countenance of one puffed up with riches. The world is motionless like the eyes of the yogi in the meditation (Sūktikar*n*ām*r*ita).

6. This season the delight of the amorous comes like a king sitting on a cloud formed maddened elephant ; the lightning his flag and the thunder his large kettle drum" (Kalidāsa).

kāra (1) and is the abode of error (2). Woman is Buddhi (3). These two are united in the Chittayoni (4), that is, in that mental function of the Anta*h*kara*n*a which is here figuratively regarded as the Yoni or womb of Buddhi. Ahaṁkāra is thus united with Buddhi and husband with wife (5). The husband is to think of himself as Madana (6) in the form of fire and of his Shiva (7) as a flame of fire. Let him embrace her who is overspread by its flame and let him sip with his tongue the nectar of her teeth and tongue. Let him think of his beautiful wife (8) as the embodiment of nectar whose body (9) is as it were the butter (10) which is melted in that fire. Let him touch her arms thinking them to be the flowery arrows of Kāma. The Mantrin should keep his self-control and take care not to injure the Jīva (11). In all the stages of passion (rati) he should be self-controlled. Thus should one's own beloved be worshipped (bhajet). If it be done thus then she who is struck by the arrows of Kāma follows her husband like a shadow even in another world (12).

At v. 40 is given the Mantra of K*ri*sh*n*a ; the *Rish*i of which is Nārada, the metre (chhanda*h*) Gāyatrī (13) and the Devatā K*ri*sh*n*a. At v. 43 is the general Dhyāna of K*ri*sh*n*a and in v. 47 His Dhyāna as He should be meditated on in the morning is described. Then He is thought of as a child of the colour of a blue lotus with a girdle of little bells covering his waist, thighs and buttocks. His throat is adorned by large and shining tiger claws. His face smiles happily like a lotus. It is He who killed the demons Shaka*t*a (14) and Pūtanā (15).

He is the Govinda to whom Shaṁkara, Indra and others do obeisance.

At v. 48 is the midday meditation (Dhyāna). Let the worshipper then think of Him as Mukunda lustrous as the full blown lotus, with eyes like blue lotuses, surrounded by cows and herdswomen (Gopīs), as one Who has conquered all His enemies, Whose pure smile is like the white jasmine and the Mandāra flowers. His head is adorned with peacock feathers. He is the strong lustrous One habited in yellow raiment. Those who thus worship Him gain wealth (1).

At v. 49 is given the evening Dhyāna. He is then contemplated upon as the unconquerable One Who by His valour has laid in the dust all His enemies and "has lightened the weight of this Earth" (2). Who is ever surrounded by great *Rishi*s such as Nārada and others who desire to learn from him the true meaning of Tattva. He is pure, incomparable, imperishable and luminously blue. He is the Vāsudeva "Who steals (3) the creation and maintenance of the universe" and Who grants Liberation.

CHAPTER XIX

Deals with Yoga. The Pra*n*ava (Oṁ) is the Kalpa tree of all desires and the grantor of Liberation. The Dhyāna is given in v. 4 of Oṁkāra or the Pra*n*ava as representing Vi*shn*u. Vv. 8-12 give the Āvara*n*a devatās of Vi*shn*u and their respective Shaktis. At verse 14 Yoga is spoken of. Yoga is defined as the constant uninterrupted vision in oneself of the Ātmā which is without hands, feet, mouth or other limb or body (4).

The faults which are impediments (Dūs*h*a*n*a) of Yoga are enumerated, viz.:—Kāma (lust), Kopa (anger), Lobha (greed), Pramoha (ignorance), Mada (pride), Matsaratā (envy). In verse 16 the well known Aṁgas of Yoga such as Yama and so forth are given and then defined. The several names of Oṁkāra follow (v. 34).

1. This is the Rājasika form, as the morning form is Sāttvika from which no material fruit is gained but the gifts of the spirit only.

2. By the removal of iniquity.

3. That is, He destroys the world. This is the Rudramūrti.

4. Kara-pāda-mukhādivihīnam anūratad*ri*shyam ananyagam ātmapadam

V. 42 describes how the different parts of Oṁkāra are dissolved in Shānta. A is dissolved (Saṁharet) in U, U in M, M in Bindu, Bindu in Nāda, Nāda in Shakti and Shakti in Shānta.

Five states (Avasthās) of consciousness are given (v. 46) and not four, viz.:—Jāgrat (waking), Svapna (dream sleep), Su*sh*upti (dreamless slumber), Turīya (the fourth state) and Tadatīta (that which is above the fourth) (1). They are then defined. Jāgrat is that enjoyment which the Ātmā enjoys by the aid of its own senses (Indriyas) (2). Svapna is that feeling or perception (Anubhava) which exists through these senses when devoid of consciousness (Saṁjnā) (3); Su*sh*upti is that condition of quietude which is caused by the effortless state of the Ātmā (4). Turīya is the state when the Ātmā sees the Supreme with unclouded vision (Chetas) (5). The fifth state is that which immediately precedes Liberation (Mukti) and is defined as "that condition where the Yogī realises the inseparateness of Ātmā and Paramātmā. From this state Liberation is not far" (6). When Pavana (Vāyu) is in the subtle Pashyantī (7) and in Madhyamā (7) and Vaikharī (7) when at the end of Su*sh*umnā (8) then Jāgrat is the utterance of the Bīja, Bindu is Svapna, Su*sh*upti is Nāda, Shakti is Turīya and Shānta is Laya (absorption) which is beyond Turīya.

1. So the Devī, in the Lalitā, is addressed as Sarvāvasthāvivarjitā, that is, "transcending all the states." Three Sūtras in the Shiva Sūtras describe this state. See Bhāskararāya's Comm. on Lalitā V. 63.

2. Svair indriyair yadātmā bhuṁkte bhogān sa jāgaro bhavati. See Introduction to The Serpent Power.

3. Saṁjnārahitair api tair asyānubhavo bhavet puna*h* svapna*h* ; that is, apparently when the sense organs cease to act directly on new objects of their functioning and Ātmā is conscious of mental images generated by those senses when in the Jāgrat state.

4. Ātmanirudyuktatayā nairākulyaṁ bhavet su*sh*uptir api.

5. Pashyati paraṁ yadātmā nistamasā chetasā turīyaṁ tat.

6. Ātmaparamātmapadayor abhedato vyāpnuyād yadā yogī,

Tachcha turīyātītaṁ tasyāpi bhavenna dūrato mukti*h*.

What is here referred to is that which is called Jīvanmukti. When the body is relinquished there follows complete or bodiless Mukti (Videha Kaivalya).

7. The subtle states (bhāva) of sound so named.

8. "At the end of Su*sh*umnā." The end is just below the twelve-petalled lotus which rests on the upper end of Su*sh*umnā. Here the meaning may be towards the end, Sūk*sh*mākhyāyāṁ pashyantyāṁ madhyamākhyavaikharyo*h*.

Sasu*sh*umnāgragayor api yunjyājjāgradādibhi*h* pavanam.

Mahāvi*sh*n*u then says :—In leaving the body, entering another body and re-entering one's own body the places of exit and entry are the Aṁgu*shth*a (either thumb or great toe), Gulpha (the ankle), Jānu (knee), Guda (anus), Sīvanī (fræ-num of prepuce or quære glans penis), Me*dh*ra (penis), Nābhi (navel), H*ri*daya (heart), Grīvā (neck). Lambikāgra (tip of the tongue), Nāsā (nose), Bhrūmadhyalalā*t*āgra (middle of eyebrows on the forehead).

He then speaks of the conquest of, or power of control over, the five elements. This is done through their respective Shaktis and Bījas, with which the self is identified (1). Thus to control fire the self is made one with its Shakti and Bīja (v. 56). He then describes the three states (2) of Siddhi (power) and the eight Siddhis ; to possess all of which is to be Jīvanmukta.

CHAPTER XX.

Deals with the meaning of the eight-letter Mantra of Nārāya*n*a "Oṁ nama*h* Nārāya*n*āya. The meaning is that Tāra (Oṁ) arises from Shakti and means So'haṁ ("I am He"). Na and Ma*h* are negatives. Nā is water, Rā is fire, Ya is air, *N*a is earth ; and the last Ya is there as a case-ending (3). The Rishi of the Mantra is Sādhyanārāya*n*a, the metre is Gāyatrī and the Devatā is Paramātmā. Verse 7 gives the Dhyāna of Mukunda (4). In the Sādhana of this Mantra the body of the Sādhaka is the Pī*th*a. V. 12 says that when Nyāsa is done with the letters of this Mantra then the Mantrin becomes the object of his own worship for he is personally composed of the letters of the Mantra.

At v. 60 the Mahāvi*shn*u enumerates the ten Avātaras of Vi*shn*u omitting Buddha and substituting Balarāma (5).

1. Shaktibhish cha tadbījai*h* sārūpyam ātmanash cha pratinītvā ; that is (to translate literally) by inducing a state of sameness (sārūpyam ātmana*h*) of the self (of the operator) with the Shakti and Bīja (of the elements).

2. That is, signs of approaching Siddhi or possession of Siddhi. The three states are ; prasūchika ("indicative" e. g., physical signs such as thrill, hair standing on end (pulaka), etc,); pratyaya ("conviction," e. g., beatitude, restraint of breath, etc.), and the third is Siddhi itself which is of various kinds, the chief enumeration being eight.

3. No more is said in the text, but the meaning is "I am He and not the five elements (named)."

4. A title of Vi*shn*u as the Giver of Liberation.

5. Shākyamuni Gautama, it may be noted, was not, as is commonly supposed the first Buddha. He merely gave shape and systematised ~~the teachings of~~ other Buddhas who preceded him. Both Buddhistik and Brahmanik writings of old prove this.

Vv. 21-24 state the Kirīṭādi Mantra (1). The Shaktis of the Pīṭha given in v. 29 are Vimalā and others. The rest of the Chapter deals with placing of the jar, Japa, Archana and other ritual details.

CHAPTER XXI

Treats of the twelve Yantras or diagrams of the twelve Rāshis (signs of the Zodiac) (2).

At vv. 54-69 is given a fine Hymn to Vishṇu here translated which is directed to be sung for the pleasure of the Deities who are to be worshipped in these Yantras.

HYMN TO VISHṆU. (3)

Oh Bhagavan (4), be gracious to me
Whose mind is dulled with ignorance ;
Give me the gift of devotion
To the pollen of Thy lotus feet.

Oh Bhagavan, be gracious to me ;
Thou cannot be imagined,
Abode as Thou art of immeasurable lustre,
Be gracious, Oh best of Purushas (5),
Who allayeth all our pains.

---

1. The Mantra used in the worship of the ornaments of Vishṇu such as crown armlet, necklace, etc.,

2. Mesha (Aries), Vrishabha (Taurus), Mithuna (Gemini), Karkaṭaka (Cancer), Siṁha (Leo), Kanyā (Virgo), Tūlā (Libra), Vrishchika (Scorpio), Dhanuḥ (Sagittarius), Makara (Capricornus), Kumbha (Aquarius), Mīna (Pisces) ; the solar year beginning with the entrance of the sun into Mesha.

3. Ch. 21, v. 54.

4. The Brahman as the possessor of all powers (aishvarya) which belong to Īshvara. This is one of the Saguṇa aspects of the Brahman.

5. The individual spirit.

Oh Īsha (1), Oh Stainless One, be gracious to me,
Who art the self of the Universe (2)
And bliss itself (3) ;
Essence unimagined (4),
To Thyself art Thou known only (5).

Be gracious to me, Highest of the highest,
Who art the Deepest of the deepest :
Be gracious, Oh Goodness and Beauty,
Who art Majesty itself to the majestic.
Great Light, be gracious to me.

Be gracious, Unmanifested One (6),
Ever pervading in that which ever pervades :
Minutest of the minute, be gracious ;
Most loving of the loving, be gracious ;
Be gracious, Thou Who art the end of all ends.

Be gracious to me, Greatest of the Great,
Oh Lord of all, Unending One (7), be gracious,
Who art eternal, Māyā (8), Holder of the conch (9),
Be gracious to us mortals :
Oh Mādhava (10), may You be ever victorious.

Of the King of Birds, Thy carrier (6), obscures the Sun ;
Oh Enemy of Hell (7), salutation to Thee !
Oh Madhusūdana (8), obeisance to Thee !
May Thou be over victorious.

10

Salutation to Thee, Oh Lotus-eyed !
Obeisance to Thee Who art collyrium to our eyes (9) !
Salutation to Thee, Destroyer of sin !

1. This epithet of Vi*sh*n*u has several significations one of which is indicated in the text, viz., He who destroys the Daitya Keshin. Another common definition is Ke jale shava iva bhāti iti Keshava : that is, "he who looks like a corpse in water" referring to the time when after pralaya and at the commencement of the creation of the world Vi*shn*u lay in the ocean of milk (K*sh*īra-samudra). Other definitions given in the Shabdakalpadruma are :—Ka = Brahmā : Īsha = Rudra : Va = Vayati or "He who at pralaya having surrendered the 3 forms" (mūrti of the Trinity) which are upādhis exists in the form of the one Paramātmā : or Ka—A—Īsha : Ka—Brahmā ; A = Vi*shn*u ; Isha = Shiva : Keshava is He who controls these three : or Ka—Īsha = "He to whom Brahmā and Shiva are son and grandson." See Vol. XV of this Series.

2. See last note.

3. Foster father of K*rishn*a.

4. Chakra and Gadā which are His implements.

5. Epithet of Vi*shn*u as destroyer of the Asuras called Jana who dwell in the ocean ; or it also means the "one who is prayed to for the attainment of Puru*sh*ārtha (that is, Dharma, Artha, Kāma, Mok*sh*a). Vāchaspatya Dict.

6. Garu*d*a who is the vehicle (vāhana) of Vi*shn*u.

7. Narakārāte. Naraka, usally translated to mean 'hell', means 'rebirth'.

8. Epithet of Vi*shn*u as slayer of the Asura Madhu, i. e. Tamo gu*n*a

9. Collyrium (anjana) is used to clear the eyes and sight. The Lord clears the spiritual vision of His worshippers and grants them spiritual knowledge.

3. Nayanātīta.

4. As Brahmā, Vis*hn*u and Rudra.

5. Vibhinnajneyāmsha, lit. "Whose various or seperate parts are knowable." The One has in Itself no parts but It displays Itself in various ways in the world. Each of such displays is a partial manifestation. What is seen is in this sense a part of Him.

6. Tridasha is a term for the Devas. Various explanations are given of the word. The simplest is that which makes it equal to $10 \times 3 + 3$ or 33 according to the rule of madhyapadalopa samāsa. These 33 are the following Devas, viz., 12 Suns (Āditya), 11 Rudras, 8 Vasus, 2 Vishvedevas. According to another interpretation the term includes all Devas ; meaning tr*i*tīyā yauvanākhyā dashā yasya. As there are three states called infancy, boyhood and youth, tridasha then means he who has attained the third state called yauvana (youth), for the Devas are ever youthful. Or tri means he who has the "three," viz., birth, existence, destruction ; not in the sense in which these terms are applied to mortal men who have increase, change and decay ; but they come into existence and exist and when their merit (pu*n*ya) is exhausted they leave Heaven and thus cease to be devas. They are called immortals (amara) but only in the limited sense of beings who exist until pralaya.—Or tri=thet hree pains (tāpa) for they who are not affected by the three-fold division, of sorrow.

7. Chakrabandhave ; lit. "friend of Chakra" which according to Hemādri here means the Sun (Sūrya) : for He is the Bharga, the Hira*n*ya Puru*sh*a in that golden luminary. See Chhāndogya Upani*sh*ad, Adhyāya I, Kha*n*da VI. Rik, 6 and 7.

CHAPTER XXII

Gives the twelve-lettered Mantra (1) of Vi*shn*u ; and three kinds of Nyāsa are prescribed with the letters of this Mantra : viz.,—Saṁhāranyāsa in which Nyāsa begins from the feet and proceeds upwards to the knees, liṁga, navel, belly, heart, hands, throat, mouth, eyes, head and the crown lock (Shikhā) (2) ; S*risht*inyāsa in which the rite begins with the Shikhā in the reverse way ; and lastly, Sthitinyāsa in which the Nyāsa commences in the middle with the heart, goes down to the feet and then from the hand goes to the Shikhā. The first is for the destruction of all Do*sh*a (fault) ; S*risht*i is for the creation or production of good ; and the object of Sthiti is to gain peace (Shānti).

The Mantras of Sudarshana are given. The Chapter continues with ritual detail. The fruit gained varies with the offering made. Thus by the offering of bael leaf with appropriate Mantras freedom from disease is attained.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Gives several Mantras including that of Vi*shn*u as "The Charmer of the whole Universe" (Trailokyamohana). A remarkable meditation on Him is given in terms of sensuous splendour at vv. 37-49 and which is as follows :—

MEDITATION ON VI*SHN*U.

Think of a beautiful garden of Kalpa trees fragrant with the scent of flowers and musical with the humming of big bees. Therein meditate upon Ramāpati (3), seated on Garu*d*a (4) who is on a red lotus. The husband of Shrī (5) is the colour of a full blown red hibiscus flower and shines with the radiance of ten million rising suns. He is in the full flush of beauteous youth shedding the nectar of His sweet scented presence and lovely form. Kind is He to all. He holds a conch shell, bow, club (Mu*sh*ala), noose (Pāsha), discus (Chakra), sword, mace (Gadā), goad (Aṁkusha). His eyes are fixed in gaze upon the face of Shrī, His spouse who embraces him in the fullness of Her love (1). Shrī is of peerless beauty and like molten gold, joyous and decked with all jewels. She holds a lotus. Her eyes are like lotuses thirsty to drink the honey from His lotus mouth. Such is the thrill (romāncha) of Her passion that it has covered Her body with pearly beads of sweat. In attendance upon them are all the Devas with their attendants, Daityas, Rāk*sh*asas (2), Gandharvas, Yak*sh*as, Pannagas (3) and the foremost of sages (Muni). Encircling Vi*shn*u and His spouse are their househld women with heavy thighs, hips and breasts (4), sweetly smiling. They look with ardent longing upon Him making obeisance with their soft folded hands. Pierced by the arrows of Anaṁga (5) they move voluptuously (6). Their lips part but scarcely utter a sound for they are tremulous with passion. Their hair and clothes are in disorder. They are shameless with passion (7). Their whole body shakes. They breathe heavily. All steadiness is stolen from them. They are about to fall, rent as they are by the terrible arrows of Manmatha (8). But yet they do not fall being strengthened and raised by the beauteous glance of Vi*shn*u. Forming lotuses as it were with their hands (9) they go towards Him and worship His two feet and with the murmur of hardly uttered words and with eyes wet with tears of joy say to Him "Supreme Lord and Husband, be our Refuge" (10).

This meditation is of a typical Vai*shn*ava quality. It is based on the idea which is expressed in the words said by the Vai*shn*ava Gurus or Gossains to their disciples, "I am Shyāma (K*rishn*a) you are Rādhā."

In His manifestation as Rādhā He is both the fount of Emotion (Rasa) and Emotion itself which includes the sexual sensation (Sh*ri*ṁgāra) and the higher love (Madhura) which in the more spiritually evolved marriage is associated with it. The worshipper rises above the unconscious animal life and the evil consciousness so often accompanying this upward movement in which the passions are regarded as things only of and for the limited self (1). The gratification of sense in serving self alone is a "sowing to the flesh". He therefore identifies himself with Rādhā and thus places himself under the direction of Her Lord with whom She is one and who as the Antaryāmin or indwelling Spirit guides and controls the body and its senses. Thus gross desire is purified by its direction towards that abode of Vi*sh*n*u wherein He as Gopāla plays and becomes as it were the vehicle on which subtle aspiration is made to rest. This inner sentiment has been sometimes exteriorised in accordance with the principle of Hindu worship whereby thought being translated into action is, by an established psychological law, reinforced by it. This is exampled by the Sakhibhāva of the Vai*sh*-*n*ava and certain ritual details in the Rahasyapūjā of the Shākta. A radical analysis af these theories and rites will, I believe, disclose a common ground and object, namely, the control and spiritualization of those passions which if left to themselves become so formidable impediments of spiritual progress. There are of course differences in the methods and devotional concepts :—Thus Vai*shn*ava worship being of a dualistic trend retains the ideal distinctions of sex and person. In Shakti worship the aim is more directly monistic and accordingly the Sādhaka regards himself as the Devī whom he worships and not as the spouse of the Devatā even though according to the true inner doctrine governing both modes of adoration the ultimate object of it is one and the same. In his utilization of passion the Hindu has had the sense to know that we must do our market with and according to the funds in our purse. I wish also to add that if the Hindu described that passion in what to the prudish may seem "immodest" detail it was because he found nothing to be ashamed or afraid of in this natural state or function in itself but in its abuse which his Scriptures like any other forbid (2).

The western initiate however in these matters may say that these observations do not exhaust the subject and do not

1. These are the states of what other Tantras call that of the Pashu ; thus to take an example, the Kulār*n*ava Tantra calls "drinking as one pleases", pashupāna or the drinking of a Pashu or beast. The Vai*shn*ava view is all given in "The Soul of India" by Bipin Chandra Pal to which I refer.

2. These observations are merely here made because to some this kind of devotion is objectionable. Where (as is the general case) it is not understood the dislike of the general Anglo-Saxon temperament is due not to grounds of general validity but to special reasons largely peculiar to the race and its circumstances. According to orthodox interpretation it is "the Church's love unto Christ" which is symbolised in the highly sensuous imagery of the "Song of Solomon"; and abundant material, of the same kind, may be found in the Catholic mystics, to which the same kind of criticism has been applied.

touch upon those other principles which have been asserted according to which sexual relations or interactions are typal of relations universally existent as well as of all action absolutely; the process of redemption (to use western parlance) moreover being according to this view the assimilation of the earthly to the heavenly planes, all physical, psychic and spiritual life being varying forms and degrees of intensity in the one universal stream of radiant Energy. Criticism however of these views or a further developement of the subject either from the Western or Indian stand-point would carry me beyond the scope of my present purpose.

The Chapter continues with an enunciation of the offerings which should be given and the rules relating to worship. The worshipper of this Mantra, it is said, acquires wealth and freedom from the oppression of his enemies and in the end attains to the abode of Vi*sh*nu.

After the disjointed fashion of several other parts of the work, at v. 64 the magical rites of Stambhana, Māra*n*a and Uchchā*t*ana are again referred to though they seem to have no connection with the other subjects of this Chapter.

CHAPTER XXIV

Deals with the Varāha (1), another Vai*sh*nava Mantra. Verse 24 says Earth is in the tusks of Varāha; the Goddess of Speech is in the grunt of this Boar; Air in His breath and the Sun and Moon are in His right and left hands. In His belly are the Vasus (2); in His ear the points of the compass; the two Ashvins (2) are in His eyes; in His feet is the Lotus born (3); in His heart Hari (4); and in His mouth Shaṁkara (5). These should all be worshipped separately. The rest of the Chapter deals with the ritual, Nyāsa, Homa, Yantra and so forth connected with this particular Mantra.

CHAPTER XXV

Describes the N*ri*siṁha (6) Mantra and the ritual connected therewith. The Dhyāna will be found in v. 8.

1. The Varāha (boar) incarnation of Vi*sh*nu was for the purpose of drawing up with His tusk the Earth which at one of the dissolutions had sunk into the waters.

2. The Devatās of those names. 3. Brahmā. 4. Vi*sh*nu. 5. Shiva.

6. The man-lion incarnation of Vi*sh*nu in which He destroyed the demon Hira*n*yakashipu. Hira*n*yakashipu (=mattress of gold) is pride of wealth and power.

CHAPTER XXVI

Deals with the Vi*shn*upanjara Mantra. In v. 21 the Dhyāna or formula of meditation on Vi*shn*u is given. The rest of the Chapter deals with the ritual.

CHAPTER XXVII

Gives the Prāsāda Mantra (1) which is so called because it purifies the mind. V. 4 gives the Dhyāna of Shiva. The five Devatās of this Mantra are the five faces of Shiva, viz. :— Īshāna, Tatpuru*sh*a, Aghora, Vāmadeva, Sadyojāta. The Dhyānas of these are given. The Pī*th*a Shaktis are Vāmā, Jye*shth*ā, Raudrī, Kālī, Kalavikari*n*ī, Balavikari*n*ī, Balapramathinī, Sarvabhūtadamanī and Manonmanī.

Dhyāna is given of the various aspects of Shiva (vv. 15, 16). As Sadyojāta He is white like the jasmine (Kunda) and Mandāra flowers. He is four-armed holding in His two hands the Veda and a rosary of Rudrāk*sh*a beads and in the other two he makes the gestures (Mudrā) which grant boons (Vara) and dispel fear (Abhaya).

The Vāma Shiva is red ; makes the same two gestures and holds an axe and Rudrāk*sh*a rosary.

Aghora Shiva who is the dread of the Bodiless One (2) is black with fierce fangs. He holds a Rudrāk*sh*a rosary, Veda, Noose, Goad, Drum (*D*amaru), a staff surmounted with a skull (Kha*t*vāṁga), spear and skull (3).

Tatpuru*sh*a is of the colour of ligntning and making the Vara and Abhaya Mudrās holds the Veda and an axe. All the above forms have four faces and four arms.

Īshāna or Īsha is of the colour of pearl but has five faces (4). He makes the gestures abovenamed and has the weapons in the hands of Aghora. These five are Brahmā, Vi*shn*u, Rudra, Ishvara and Shiva. All five forms have three eyes (5).

1. For the Parāprāsāda Mantra See Ch. IV. of Kulār*n*ava Tantra.

2. Kāma, the Deva of sexual desire. According to the reading now adopted, 'tanu' for 'tano', the meaning is 'Aghora Shiva is huge in shape, of a luminous black colour, terrific of aspect with fierce fangs.'

3. Another Dhyāna of Aghora is given at v. 18 of Ch. 28.

4. Where Shiva is meditated upon as Sadyojāta, Vāma, etc., collectively He is thought of as with five faces in all. But when the Dhyāna is of one of these forms only then the Mūrti has four or five faces as stated in the text.

5. The central eye of wisdom (jnānachak*sh*u*h*) situated between the eyebrows.

There is a remarkable (1) Dhyāna of Shiva in v. 41 where He is described as of gracious aspect; seated on a lotus; as it were "a mountain of pearl dust mingled in nectar." He is clad in tiger's skin and decked with ornaments (2); upon His hair high coiled above His head is a digit (Kalā) of the moon (3). He makes the two Mudrās abovenamed and holds an axe and a deer (4). He has five faces.

At vv. 55-64 the following Hymn to Shiva is given.

HYMN TO SHIVA

Obeisance
To Paramātmā
Manifest as Brahmā, Vis*h*n*u and Īsha (5)
Whose power it is to create, preserve and to destroy (6).

Obeisance
To Thee, the Lord of creatures, Holder of the trident.
Who seemeth terrible to all things born on earth in four-fold way (7)
And yet removes the burden of their worldly pain.

Obeisance to Thee
Who didst drink the shining deadly poison,
Nīlaka*nth*a, Whose throat is stained thereby (8)
And Who dost devour the Universe (9).

---

1. Because the ordinary picture of Shiva is that of an ascetic but as appears from the text the Dhyāna varies with the object of worship. When worshipped for prosperity He has fleshly beauty and is decked with all ornaments. He manifests the prosperity which the worshipper desires.

2. Sarvālamkāradīpta.

3. The crescent moon is here meant.

4. V. 22 of the Mahimnastava of Pus*h*padanta refers to the incident of Brahmā's lusting after His own daughter Sandhyā and of his transforming Himself into a stag when she to avoid him changed into a hind. Shiva in anger at the act bent his bow against him. The deer which He holds is said by some to be Brahmā. According to others it refers to a gigantic deer sent out to kill Shiva, but which He took in his hand, See Shivajnāna Siddhiyār, Ed. by J. M. N. Pillai, p. 91. M*ri*ga (=deer) means Veda. Shiva for the ordinary man holds a deer in His hand. But the higher Sādhaka sees the Veda or Brahmajnāna.

5. Rudra. 6. They are the embodiments of these principles.

7. That is, from the womb, (e.g., mammals) from the egg (e.g., birds), moisture (e.g., insects) and the earth (e.g., trees and plants). See ante, p. 8.

8. At the churning of the ocean by the Gods by means of the mountain Mandara and the serpent Vāsuki, there was produced amongst other things churned from the sea a poison which Shiva swallowed to save the world. This stained His neck dark blue whence he is called "Blue neck" (Nīlaka*nth*a).

9. At the dissolution of the world which He as Mahākāla effects.

Obeisance to Shambhu (1)
Who didst destroy Kāma (2)
Flashing from His central eye dark shining flame,
On Whom meditate Yogīs
Freed of all mental pain (3).

5.

Obeisance
To Him Whose body is one with that of His Spouse (4),
Who destroyed the sacrifice of Daks*h*a (5),
Grantor of the four-fold desires (6),
He Who is subtle (7), the possessor of Māyā (8).

6.

Obeisance to Him
In physical form (9) ; the Primal element (10)
Rending His enemies with His trident,
The Destroyer of Kāla (11)
Whose head the cresent moon adorns.

7.

Obeisance
To Him the Naked One
In Whose matted hair are Serpent, Moon and Ganges (12)
Whose feet are upon the heads of Devas, Daityas, and Lords of Asuras,

1. Shiva. Shaṁkara = Beneficence.

2. Vyaktāvyaktasvarūpāya Avyakta is what is unmanifested and vyakta what is manifested. According to Sāṁkhya, avyakta is mūlaprakṛiti and vyakta is a vikṛiti or transformation and manifestation of Prakṛiti. According to the Vedānta, Avyakta is Ātmā the Reality and Vyakta the World of appearance.

3. For the Tantra grants both.

4. A great Daitya, son of Hiraṇyākṣha, brother of Hiraṇyakashipu father of Prahlāda. See Ch. 8. Vāmana Purāṇa 59, 70. The word also means tamoguṇa, ignorance.

5. Shiva is Tripurāri exoterically as the destroyer of the Tripura or the three cities of the Asuras, Kamalākṣha, Tārakākṣha and Vidyunmālī. As the Kālikā Purāṇa says He is called Tripura because the three guṇas are in him. His body becoming triple upon the three-fold manifestation of Brahmā, Viṣhṇu and Rudra. He dissoloves these and He is Destroyer of the three bodies, Sthūla, Sūkṣhma and Kāraṇa.

6. The Varāha Avatāra of Viṣhṇu slain by Shiva in the form of the animal called Sharabha. Kālikā Purāṇa, Ch. 29.

7. The Vāhana of Shiva. The bull of Shiva is Viṣhṇu who assumed that form to support Shiva at the time the latter killed Tripura. Shiva had for the purpose of the combat to assume so great a size using as his arrow the Sumeru Mountain that the Earth could not support Him, on which Viṣhṇu assumed the form of a Bull to uphold Him. Vṛiṣhabha (Bull) means Dharma. Shiva (Beneficence) rests on Dharma.

8. The eight forms (Aṣhṭamūrti) of Shiva.

9. In this world.

10. Bhavabhaya : that is, fear at the thought that we may be born again to suffer miseries which are the necessary attendants of all life in this world.

The rest of the Chapter deals with ritual, v. 68 giving an invocation to Shiva as Hara. Verse 68 says :—

"I adore Hara Who holds a spear and skull and makes the gestures of granting boons and dispelling fear. The Daughter of the Mountain holding in Her left hand a red lotus is seated on His left thigh and with Her right arm clasps His lustrous body."

Verse 71 says that in order to gain prosperity the Lord of Pārvatī should be meditated upon as being as beautiful as the God of Desire (Kāma); with the lustre of gold; seated on a lotus decked with all manner of ornaments. He holds an axe and deer and makes the gesture (Mudrā) of granting boons. His left hand is placed upon the breast of His beloved, Whose right hand rests on His right thigh, and Whose left hand holds a red lotus.

CHAPTER XXVIII

Opens with the Mantra and description of Dak*shin*ā-mūrti, an aspect of Shiva. He is seated under a fig tree (Va*t*a) with one hand on His knee. He is white as milk (Ks*h*īra). A great serpent is coiled around His waist. The crescent moon is on His matted hair. He holds an axe and deer and makes the auspicious (Bhadra) gesture (1). He is surrounded by Shuka and other Munis. "May Bhava grant ye purity of mind (Bhāvashuddhi)." Then follows some ritual in His worship.

Verses 12, 13 give the Mantra of Aghora Rudra and is followed in v. 18 by this invocation. "May Aghora destroy all that is evil to you. He is of fierce mien with three eyes and terrific to behold; dark like the black clouds and clad in red raiment. Great serpents cover His body. He holds an axe, drum, sword, shield, bow, arrow, spear and skull. He it is Who devours inimical Nāgas (2) and evil planets. He ever grants good (that is, to His worshipper)".

The ritual is dealt with up to v. 30. The next verse gives the M*ri*tyunjayamantra; and the Dhyāna of this aspect is at v. 33. The remainder of the Chapter deals with Yantra and other ritual details.

CHAPTER XXIX

Commences with the Mantra of Ardhanārīshvara (1). The Dhyāna of Umesha is thus given at v. 3 after the invocation "May Īsha ever protect you." His Shakti forms the (left) half of His body. He is three-eyed. On the coils of His matted hair are a serpent, moon and Ganges (2). He holds serpent, axe, spear, sword, fire (3), skull, arrow and bow. All the Devas lower their heads at His feet,

For the attainment of powers (Vibhūti) the Devatā should be meditated upon (v. 4.) as being in one half of His body, a man of ferocious aspect and in the other half as a voluptuous woman (4), holding in His and Her hands a noose, a red lotus a skull and spear ; or (v. 5) She should be thought of as the three-eyed One Who is red of colour, clothed in red raiment, adorned with red ornaments holding a spear in each of Her sixteen uplifted hands.

Rules are then given for Japa, Homa and so forth.

The colour of the Deva varies according to the object of worship (v. 13). When worshipped for Pu*sht*ikarma (5) and Shāntikarma (6), He is white ; for Ākar*sh*a*n*a and Vashīkara*n*a (7), red ; for K*sh*obha and Saṁstobhana (8), He is the colour of gold ; in rites done to drive away (9), torment of the body (10), the colour of smoke (Dhūmra) ; in rites performed to paralyze (11), yellow ; and to gain Liberation, crytalline white (12).

The ritual in the worship of Ardhanārīshvara is dealt with up to v, 30. At v. 31 the Cha*nd*a Mantra and at vv. 36, 37 the Cha*nd*a Gāyatrī are given. The Chapter concludes with other details as to the worship of the fierce aspect of Shiva called Cha*nd*a.

CHAPTER XXX.

This is an important Chapter dealing with the Gāyatrī Mantra. In v. 5 it is explained how the Pra*n*ava (1) produced by Prak*ri*ti-vik*ri*ti is like the humming of bees in the Mūlādhāra (2) and goes upwards along the channel of the Sus*h*umnā (3) in seven stages (4) to the head. V. 6 enumerates the seven Vyāh*ri*tis (5). In vv. 7-10 Mahāvis*hn*u teaches what these denote. Bhū*h* is mere existence alone (Sanmātra). Bhuva*h* is elements (Bhūta) and Cause (Kāra*n*a) Sva*h* is the Guide and the Ātmā of all that is (6) ; Maha*h* implies Greatness and Light (7) ; Tat, (Brahman) is Jana*h* because It is all (8). Tapa*h* denotes Jnānatā (All knowledge) and Tāpatā (9). Satyam implies Supremacy and Ātmatva or the natural state of Ātmā, that is, Ātmā in itself, and eternal Wisdom (Anantajnāna). The exoteric "worlds" are thus described as stages of being. The letters of the Pra*n*ava are then identified with them. A is Bhu*h*, U is Bhuva*h*, M is Sva*h*, Maha*h* is Bindu, Nāda is Jana*h*, Shakti is Tapa*h*, and Shānta is Satyam the highest of these states (vv. 11, 12).

Having dealt with Oṁ, Mahāvis*hn*u deals with each of the words of the Gāyatrī Mantra (10).

Tat is in the accusative singular. By it reference is made to the first Cause of all substance (Vastu). It exists in the form of fire and energy (Tejorūpa) in the disc of the Sun (Ādityama*nd*ala). It means the ever-blissful and Supreme Brahman. *Savitu*h is in the genitive singular and is derived from a root which means to bring forth By this word is implied the source of all animate beings. It is called Vareny-

---

1. Oṁ. See Shāradātilaka XXI. vv. 1-31 and notes thereto. Rāghava in his Commentary under verse 18 gives the fourth pāda of the Gāyatrī which is recited by the seeker of Liberation. It is Parorajase sāvadoṁ.

2. The lowest of the centres (*Shat*chakra). See A. Avalon's "The Serpent Power."

3. The nerve (Nā*d*ī) of that name v. ib.

4. The six Chakras and the Sahasrāra. See ante p. 43 for the seven parts of the Pra*n*ava, also below.

5. That is, the seven upper worlds—Bhū*h*, Bhuva*h*, Sva*h*, Maha*h*, Jana*h*, Tapa*h*, Satyam.

6. Sarvasya svīra*n*āt svātmatayā.

7. Mahattvāt cha mahastvāt cha,

8. Tadeva sarvajanatā tasmāt tad vyāh*ri*tirjana*h*. Janatā=Janasamūha*h*.

9. This word which is here not translated literally means heating, suffering, and comes from the same root as does tapas or austerity, It means here the sum of distress and suffering to which, through ignorance, humanity is liable. The text here shows that the Gāyatrī mantra as a whole and in its parts is one with the Brahman.

10. Tat savitur vare*n*yam bhargo devasya dhīmahi dhiyo yo na*h* prachodayāt.

am because it is the Excellent One to Whom service should be rendered, adoration offered, and prayer said. The text reads these three words as composed of eight letters (Ak*sh*ara) and says that their Vyāh*ri*ti is Bhū*h*.

Bharga is so called because It destroys sin and is propitious to the devotee. Devasya implies that It has the luminous quality of light and is possessed of the power of giving rain and the like. Dhīmahi is derived from the root dhyai which means to think. "Let us here remember that the Deva who can be seen by the celestial eyes of Nigama (1) and knowledge (Vidyā) is golden (Hira*n*maya) and ever in the Sun, His lustre knows no diminution. Ever should we think what is subtle that I am (ya*h* sūk*sh*ma*h* so ham)." Bhuva*h* is the Vyāh*ri*ti of these second three words composed of eight letters.

Dhiyo (2) means Buddhi in the accusative plural. Yo is Ya*h*, the masculine gender being here used for the neuter (3) for the sake of the metre. It therefore stands for Yat. This Yat is the incomparable Energy (Tejas) which pervades all the Vedas. It destroys the sin of the devotee. *Na*h (our) is the genitive plural of Asmad. Prachodayāt means "May it send us in the path of prayer" (Prārthanā) (4). *Sva*h is the Vyāh*ri*ti of the third set of eight letters (vv. 13-26).

This Mantra of ten words is thus divided into three sections of eight letters each ; but it can also be divided into four sections of six letters each. The Mahāvi*sh*nu concludes by saying "May the excellent and Supreme Spirit (Bharga) of the Creative Lord (Deva Savitā) on Whom we meditate ever guide and direct our minds."

He then proceeds to speak of the Shira*h* (head) of Gāyatrī. Āpa*h*, Jyoti*h*, Rasa are the energy (Tejas) of Soma and Agni (5). The Universe is in the nature of this (Tadātmakam). It is Nectar (Am*ri*ta) because it is undestructible. By reason of this and His multiplicity or all-pervadingness Brahman is so called. Brahman who is Bliss itself (Ānandātmaka) and Satya (Truth) (6) and Jnāna (Knowledge or Consciousness) is Bhū*h*

---

1. A term for the Veda, and in the special sense Tantra.

2. Dhiya*h*, changed by the rule of Sandhi. 3. Yat as corresponding with Tat.

4. Ordinarily it is said "in the path of dharma, artha, kāma, mok*sh*a" But if prayer is made to God it must be for these for they include all man's aims.

5. By Soma and Agni, Prak*ri*ti and Puru*sh*a are meant. The Shira*h* of the Gāyatrī is:—Oṁ āpo jyotī raso'm*ri*taṁ bhūrbhuva*h* svaroṁ.

6. Sat is existence and truth (Satya) alone exists. Here the existence of the Brahman who is Sat, Chit, Ānanda is meant. The text is capable of other interpretations.

Bhuva*h*, Sva*h*, It has already been shown that "So'haṁ" "I am He" is Oṁ. Thus this Mantra is the Shira*h* of the Gāyatrī (1). Thus concluding the exposition of the points (Lak*sh*a*n*a) of the Mantra, Mahāvi*shn*u says that the faithful Sādhaka who worships with desire (2) obtains the fulfilment thereof and he who seeks Liberation gets it.

Then follow rules of ablutions in Gāyatrī Sādhana. Vv. 40-45 deal with the Rishis, Devatās and metre of Pra*n*ava, the Vyāh*ri*tis and the Gāyatrī. The mode of doing Nyāsa is also stated. Verses 46-50 describe the way Upāsanā, Japa, Svādhyāya (3), Prā*n*āyāma and Dhyāna in Her subtle form, of the Gāyatri are to be done. V. 60 gives a Dhyāna of Tāri*nī* (Gāyatrī) (4), in her gross form with four faces which are white, yellow, red and black ; Her body being composed of the 24 letters of the Gāyatrī. V. 61 speaks of the worship of the Sun and His Shaktis. Mahāvi*shn*u concludes by saying "I have now spoken of the secret of the Vedas knowable only by very pure Yogīs. He who in his Japa, Homa. and Dhyāna worships Oṁkāra in this way is freed of all Karma and attains Liberation."

CHAPTER XXXI

Commences with the Tri*sht*ubh Mantra (5) which is Vedīk ; the Dhyāna of the Adhi-Devī of the Mantra who is Kātyāyanī is given in v. 9 and Her nine Shaktis in vv. 13, 14. In vv. 18-23 are to be found the names of the Shaktis of the letters of the Mantra. It is noted that the number of Japa prescribed (v. 25.) for this Mantra is twice that of the Gāyatrī. The Mantra which is composed of 44 letters, if reversed, becomes the (v. 29) Astra (weapon) mantra and is divided into eight sections which are identified with various things, the senses of knowledge, the senses of action, the five elements and so forth (vv. 30-34). From these 44 letters issue 44 Vahni Devatās, each of whom is attended by 5 Shaktis ; each of whom is attended by five handmaidens ; each of whom is again attended by 16 handmaidens ; each of whom again is attended by millions upon millions of handmaidens (40-43).

1. The Mantra at p. 61 n. 5 always precedes the Gāyatrī.
2. That is Sakāma Sādhana or worship done to gain an object.
3. Rite whereby oneness of the Mantra with the Devatā thereof is realised.
4. She who saves : for that is what of the Gāyatrī mantra does to its singer.
5. See Shāradātilaka. Ch. xxi, vv, 32 et. seq. Rāghava gives the Mantra and other details. The Devatā of the Mantra is Agni.

In v. 48 the Nakshatras (1) are divided into three classes ; human (Mānusha), demonic (Asura) and celestial (Daiva). Their place in magical rites is also shown.

From verse 55 to the end of the Chapter Mahāvishnu speaks of the magical rites relating to Stambhana, Vashīkarana, Ākarshana, Vidveshana, Vimohana, Mārana, Aṁgahānikarana (2) and so forth ; and the means to be taken to counteract these operations when done by others. It is noteworthy here and in many other places that the most diverse matters are placed together. This is also the case with many verses which seem hardly in their proper place, suggesting a doubt as to the accuracy of the order in which the copying has been done.

CHAPTER XXXII

Deals with the Lavana Mantra and Mārana, Vashīkarana and other magical rites. Verse 8 gives the Dhyāna of Kātyāyanī a form of Durgā. Her body is like the "friend of air" (3). She has three eyes and wears a bright crown. She holds discus (Chakra), conch, sword and spear and is the Destructress of many Daityas. Dhyānas are also given of Rātri (night), Agni and Bhadrakālī with prayers to these Deities. The fifth Mantra, it is said, is from the Atharva Veda.

CHAPTER XXXIII

Deals with the Anushtubh Mantra (4) of 32 letters which is Vedik ; the Dhyāna of the Deva of the Mantra who is Rudra is given in v. 8 and the 32 Shaktis in vv. 12-14. Then follow ritual details. At vv. 27, 28, a Mantra of a 100 letters (Shatākshara) is mentioned. It is formed by the junction of Gāyatrī, Trishtubh and Anushtubh Mantras. These three Mantras are respectively Sun, Fire and Moon. The Devatā of the combined Mantra is (v. 31) the supreme Mahah who grants Liberation and of whom Shruti speaks. Vv. 60 et seq give the Nyāsa and other rites in connection

1. See p. 25, n, 5 ante.

2. Paralyzing, bringing under control, attracting, causing dissension, bewildering, killing, limb-destroying. Thus if Homa is done to Black Durgā in the manner described an enemy is killed and so forth.

3. Pavanasakha : Fire is so called.

4. The Shāradātilaka, Ch. xxiii, deals with this Mantra and Rāghava cites it.

with this Mantra. This is followed by (vv. 43-47) the Saṁvādasūkta a Mantra of Saṁvāda-saṁjnānāgni and the rites relating thereto. At v. 56 is given the Rik and at v. 59 Dhyāna of Varuṇa the predominating colour which the meditation seeks to excite being white. Ritual details as regards His worship follow.

CHAPTER XXXIV

Commences with rules relating to the drawing of diagrams (Yantra). Verse 33 describes a Yantra whereby the Sādhaka can make a woman desire him. Vv. 34-36 gives the Brahmashrī Mantra the Devatā of which is Gaurī. At v. 38 is a Dhyāna of Pārvatī. This is followed by a number of Mantras and Dhyānas of the Devatās thereof : the Rājamukhī (43-45) ; the Annapradāyaka (v. 51) ; Annapūrṇā (v. 54) ; Vṛihaspati (v. 60) ; Shukra (v. 63) and Vyāsa (v. 65) Mantras. In verse 66 the Dhyāna of Vyāsa is given. Verse 72 gives the Mantra and v. 74 the Dhyāna of Ādyā as Ashvārūḍhā (Seated on a horse).

CHAPTER XXXV

Gives the Prāṇapratishṭhā Mantra used in the invocation of the Devatā into the Yantra or image to be worshipped.

At v. 7, a Dhyāna of Prāṇashakti is given in which She is represented as of the colour of the rising sun with three eyes and large full rounded breasts (1) seated on a full blown lotus which is on a boat in an ocean of blood (Raktāmbhodhi) ; holding a noose, a bow of sugarcane, a goad, five arrows (2) and Asṛik-kapāla (3). Her Dūtīs or Shaktis are stated in verse 12.

CHAPTER XXXVI

Begins with some verses as to the causes of childlessness which are put down to want of faith, worship, charity, decrying

1. Pīnavakshoruhāḍhyā.
2. See A. & E. Avalon's "Hymns to the Goddess", p. 28, n. 9.

(Nindaka) one's wife and so forth : and vv. 8-21 deal with the rites to be performed to cure this defect. Then follows an enunciation of the proper characteristics of a Guru (vv. 22-32) and of a disciple (vv. 32-41). If the disciple has the defects which are mentioned in vv. 42-48 he should be rejected and if a Guru received such a person as his disciple then the fault (Dos*h*a) of the latter affects the Guru just as that of the minister affects the king, and the sins of a wife affect her husband. If through either cupidity or affection a Guru initiates such a faulty disciple then the curse of the Devatā falls upon both (vv. 49 51).

Mahāvis*hn*u then speaks of the devotion which a disciple should exhibit towards his Guru or spiritual director and which is to be like that which should be shown to mother and father, to Vis*hn*u and Shiva (vv. 51-52). One should not cross anything belonging to, or connected with the Guru, not even his shadow ; nor should there be association with his enemy. Great reverence and selfrestraint should be shown whilst in his house. Therein there should be no anger and quarelling, lust, loud talk, lies, sloth and idle disputation ; nor any easing of nature, sexual intercourse, spitting, vomiting ; or traffic by way of buying, selling, or lending (vv. 53-55). The Guru's command should not be disobeyed. What he orders, that the disciple should do at once and unhesitatingly and without attempting to discuss whether it is right or wrong (1). In short the disciple should by action. mind and speech, worship his Guru with a guileless and faithful heart. At v. 59 it is said that one should never do anything which offends others, however much we may desire it even in so small a matter as dress.

At v. 62 Mahāvis*hn*u addressing Brahmā says "Oh Lotus-born One, in this Tantra (2) I have shown thee the Prapancha (3) in its five-fold aspect."

This Chapter and the work concludes with the following invocation.

1. Is*ht*aṁ vānis*ht*am ādis*ht*aṁ guru*n*ā yattu gurvapi,
   Tvarayā parayā kuryād buddhyā samyag ajihmayā (V. 56).

This appears to solve in an extreme sense a point raised by St. Alphonsus Liguori as to the duties of a penitent towards his spiritual director, but possibly as in the case of all general rules there may be some exception here.

POSTSCRIPT

In the present edition the text has been rearranged. This has been done in accordance with the Commentary by Padmapādāchārya, now published for the first time. The two manuscripts available to the editor at the time the book was first published as Vol. III in this series, had the chapters in the order as in the book then published. There were some misgivings as to the correctness of the order in which the chapters were placed. Chapter 36 of that edition is devoted to Vi*shn*u rituals and its proper place, it was felt, was with the group of chapters dealing with the Vi*shn*u aspect of the Supreme Being. In the same way Chapter 33 in that edition should, it was felt, come at the end of the Book. But editors of any Shāstra have to be very reluctant to interfere with the text of their own motion as a rule, and should be more so in the case of Mantra-shāstra. It was on this account that the book was printed as it was in the manuscripts. Almost simultaneously with the publication by us of the Prapanchasāra, there was another recension published as part of the collected works of Shaṁkarāchārya from Srirangam. This publication received the support of the Sringeri Ma*tha*. In the Srirangam edition, the text of the Prapanchasāra is divided into 33 chapters, but the matter contained in it is almost identical with that contained in our publication, with this exception, that chapter 36 which is chapter 23 in the present edition is omitted. The reason for the omission may be explained by the fact that the manuscript available to the editors did not contain the chapter. It is called the Gupta Pa*t*ala or Secret Doctrine by Rāghava Bha*tt*a in his commentary of the Shāradātilaka (Ch. 17. 1). The editor of the Srirangam publication has also followed the wise method of not interfering with the text. It has evidently been printed as contained in the manuscript and even some palpable errors have not been set right. The editor, it may reasonably be presumed, hoped that in a subsequent edition the mistakes would be corrected with the help of other manuscripts. In the present edition, the following re-arrangement has been made. Chapter 36 of the first edition is here printed as 23, 34 as 32, 33 as 36, 32 as 34 and Chapter 31 as 33.

Padmapāda was one of the immediate disciples of Saṁkarāchārya and there can be no greater authority than he, as to the order in which the chapters are to be placed. His commentary named the "Vivara*n*a" is printed here for the first time. The only other works by him, so far known, are the Panchapādikā which deals with the Vedānta Sūtras and a commentary on the well-known Mantra of five letters of Shiva, (Shivapanchāk*sh*ara) printed at the end of this book.

It cannot be claimed that the text as published is complete and free from all blemishes. We had a copy of this furnished by the Adyar Library where there are two copies of the Vivara*n*a. A copy was obtained from the manuscript in the collection of the Madras Government. The Asiatic Society of Bengal has a fragment of the Vivara*n*a which contains the commentary of the first eight chapters of the book. The press copy was further read by Mr. Shrīnivāsa Aiyer who compared it with a manuscript in his possession.

The Prayoga-krama dīpikā is a gloss on Padmapāda's Vivara*n*a. Unfortunately, a complete copy of this could not be obtained inspite of all the efforts made. It ends with the ninth chapter of the book. It was felt that as it contained all the chapters dealing with the general principles of Mantra-shāstra, as also the chapters on Sarasvatī and Tripurā, the best thing to do would be to publish it as found. H. H The late Mahārājādhirāja Rameswar Singh of Darbhanga who glanced through it, considered that in spite of its defective readings in several places, it is of great practical value and supported the view taken by the editor. The Prayoga-krama-dīpikā is meant for the Sādhaka, but even the ordinary reader, whose quest is to trace the philosophical principles underlying the ritualistic practices of the Brahmanik faiths will find much of very great interest to himself.

The Vivara*n*a and the Prayoga-krama dīpikā will help to show him that Brahmanism is not as is commonly, in ignorance, supposed to be a mass of conflicting religious faiths. In Brahmanism, there is one goal for all different forms of Sādhanā and that goal is the Brahman. Unlike the followers of other forms of of religion, the follower of the Brahmanik faith has no quarrel with any one. He is aware that all men cannot have the same temperament and therefore cannot view things in the same way and it is on this account that even within the Brahmanik fold, there are quite a number of different forms of worship or Sādhanā. These are primarily divided into five classes, viz. Shaiva, Shākta, Vai*shn*ava, Saura and Gā*n*apatya. All these five aspects are dealt with in this book. The Prapanchasāra is the first book of its kind. Other eminent writers followed the great master ; the most noticeable among these being Lakshmana Deshikendra, Īshānashiva, Krishnānanda and many others less known.

Digitization by eGangotri and Sarayu Trust. Funding by MoE-IKS

The Vivarana does not give details like Rāghava Bhatta for instance, in his commentary on the Shāradātilaka, and Bhāskararāya in the works commented on by him. It is possible that at the time the book was written great details were not needed, as the men of those days were better informed. Or it may be, that he meant it only for that class of readers who did not require any greater help for the understanding of the text. The author of the Prayoga-krama dīpikā, which was evidently written at a much later age, has given these details and made the Vivarana intelligible in places which are obscure for present day learners. We know nothing about the author of the Dīpikā not even his name, but it is evident from his writings that his knowledge of the Shāstra was great and he believed Shaṁkarāchārya to be the author of the Prapanchasāra and Padmapāda, of the Vivarana.

There are several other commentaries of the Prapanchasāra by various writers written at different times. Rāghava Bhatta mentions one by name, viz., the Vijnāna-chandrikā. This book is not so far available. There is another commentary called the Sambandhadīpikā by Uttamabodha. This must have been written after Lakshmanāchārya's Shāradātilaka became well known as an authoritative work. Pandit Gurupada Haldar places Lakshmanāchārya in the tenth century of the Christian era. This is the view of western Missionary writers also. There is another book by Gīrvānendra Sarasvatī named Prapanchasāra-sāra-saṁgraha. Gīrvānendra says that his Summary of Shaṁkarāchārya's teachings in the Praparchasāra follows the interpretation of a commentary named Sat-sampradāya-sarvasva. Other commentaries are :— (1) Prapanchasāra-vyākhyā, (2) Prapanchasāradīpa by Nārāyana, (3) Tattva-dīpikā by Nāgasvāmī, (4) Prapancha-sāragūdhārtha-dīpikā by Nityānanda, (5) Vijnāna-dyotinī, (6) Prapanchasāra-vivriti, (7) Prapanchasāra-prayoga-vidhi, (8) Prapanchasāra-sambandha-tīkā and (9) Prapanchasāra-vritti. These are preserved in the Madras Government manu-script Library. They all say that the book is by Shaṁkarā-chārya. The Tanjore Library, it is said, contains some books, but no details of the same could be obtained. The fact that so many Sādhakas and scholars devoted themselves to the exposition of this book is a sure indication that it must have been written by a man entitled to very great reverence. The Nepal manuscript of the Prapanchasāra, in its colophon, states that the author of the book was Āchārya the word being in the plural. And that is how Shaṁkarāchārya is always designated.

When this book made its first appearance it was noticed in some periodicals and the reviewers occupied themselves merely in trying to prove that the author of the book could not have been Shaṁkarāchārya. One of these tried to make out that it was the work of the Vai*shn*ava teacher Shaṁkaradeva of Assam. This cannot be accepted, as he flourished about the time of Chaitanyadeva, which is less than 500 years from now. Another critic has attempted to make out that Vi*shn*u-svāmī, the Guru of Vidyāra*n*ya, was the author of this book and Vi*shn*u-svāmī flourished in the 13th century. This also cannot be accepted, as Amalānanda-yati, the author of the Kalpataru, has cited texts from the Prapanchasāra as the word of Shaṁkarāchārya and Amalānanda belonged to an age prior to that of Vi*shn*u-svāmī. As an instance of the uninformed way the Shāstra is spoken of may be cited the case of H. P. Shāstrī who (Catalogue of Nepal Mss. Vol. 1) says that this book is an original Vai*shn*ava Tantra.

Critics of this type evidently cannot reconcile themselves to the fact that Shaṁkarāchārya, the Great Monist, could write a work on Mantra-shāstra. They seem to be labouring under the obsession that being a monist, Shaṁkarāchārya could not have written anything which advocates Sādhanā, as Sādhanā implies dualism, for in it there must be an object of Sādhanā. Orthodox exponents feel that these gentlemen look upon Shaṁkarāchārya as the holder of a chair in a modern University, whose duty it is to deliver a course of lectures on Monism as a theory, or perhaps, that he was a speculator like some German or other European philosopher who devotes himself to theorise and speculate about transcendental matters. This is mainly due to the fact of their having lost their Indian mind. Western philosophers have not succeeded in moulding the religious life of their countrymen like Shaṁkarāchārya, and even lesser men did in India.

It is not realised that Shaṁkarāchārya was not a mere theorist but a Teacher in the right sense of the word, a Guru who sought, and that successfully, not merely to uplift and enlighten the intellect but the very nature of the Sādhaka.

He established four Ma*th*as where the aspirants have, not merely to read the commentaries on the Brahma Sūtras and Upani*sh*ads, but to qualify themselves by Sādhanā for an experiential realisation of the teachings of the Vedānta.

His place as an authority on Mantrashāstra is recognised by all eminent writers of old. Even that abstruse logician Bhāskararāya begins his commentary on the Saptashatī Cha*nd*ī with a salutation of Shaṁkarāchārya and his four great disciples the foremost among whom was Padmapāda. There Bhāskararāya speaks of Shaṁkarāchārya as the Guru of the Gurus. His position is not fully understood by the majority of present day scholars who write or speak about him.

As against the opinion of present day critics presumably affected by westernism, we get the testimony of Amalānanda-yati already cited, the great Rāghava Bha*tt*a author of the Padārthādarsha, Bhāskararāya, an abstruse logician and one of the most authoritative commentators on Mantrashāstra, Mādhavāchārya, whose excellent commentary on the Sūtasaṁhitā is well-known, Nilaka*nth*a author of the Commentary on the Devī Bhāgavata and a whole host of other eminent authorities too numerous to mention. It is not realised that the teachings of Mantrashāstra are most jealously guarded and it is not possible to interpolate anything, much less substitute the name of one author for another. It is hard to believe that the great men whose names have been given above and who are great not merely as scholars but also as Sādhakas, should be misled. All the men whose names have been given, were men of great critical ability and some of them masters of Nyāya-Darshana. A careful perusal of this book, in spite of some of the defects from which it has not been possible to make it free, will convince the dispassionate reader that there can be no doubt about Shaṁkara being its author. This book will also give him a true conception of the Mantrashāstra.

With Indians, as the people of Bhāratavar*sh*a, are called, Vedānta is not mere speculation, but is something which is implanted into the life of the people. Tantra Shāstra is Sādhana Shāstra, and the object of it is to reach the highest Truth, which is the Brahman, the attributeless, impartite Tattva, which is without beginning or end and is the highest Bliss. The Sādhaka has, it is true, in the earlier stages, to have recourse to initiation by the Guru into his Mantra, Devatā and other accessories but he is repeatedly told to realise his oneness with the Guru, the Mantra, the Devatā of his worship and so forth. All the rituals that he has got to perform point to this one end. The image that is selected for him by his Guru as the object of worship, is his image of the Brahman (Svakīyā Brahmamūrti). It is through that image that he realises the Brahman and the image is not an end in itself. The different images used by the five classes of worshippers previously mentioned and the many sub-divisions of these five classes, are all images of the Brahman ; each class of Sādhaka having its own particular form according to competency (Adhikāra). This fact has been known even to western scholars, as is evident from a book published in the 18th century (Sketches of the Hindus, 2nd Ed. 1792 A. D.) It is there said "Amidst the multiplicity of their idols, all adoration is ultimately directed to Brahman, the Supreme, the Invisible." (Vol. II, page 256). The Sādhaka rises from the gross (Sthūla) to the subtle (Sūk*sh*ma) and then to the transcendent (Para) conception of the Supremes Being.

CC0. In Public Domain. Jangamwadi Math Collection, Varanasi

But in spite of this, it is a common pastime among western and westernised critics to make out that the Hindu is an idolator and a polytheist and as a result he is degenerate. Some may say this in ignorance, others with deliberation. Any religion which has a special place of worship is in that sense idolatorous. Primitive races have no images to worship and do not build Churches or temples with that object. It is a well-known fact that the Hos and the Mundaries of Chota-Nagpur, the aboriginal races of the Phillipines do not have images for their worship. The Hindu does not worship many gods. What he does is that he has the same respect for the faith of others as he has for his own.

Although followers of other religious faiths may decry them, the Hindus are prohibited from saying anything in disparagement of the Teachers and Sacred Books of other forms of Sādhanā. They do not also believe in proselytising. They however, at the same time, do not turn away the earnest seeker.

Whatever views may be entertained as to the authorship of this book it should be borne in mind that in his country the position of Shaṁkarāchārya as a Guru is highor than his position as scholar and philosopher. Others have written commentaries and books on the Vedānta Sūtras and the Upani*sh*ads but there is none who is venerated as Shaṁkara is all over the sacred land of Bhāratavar*sh*a. It may be noted here that even a Roman Catholic Missionary has discovered the harmony of Vedānta with Christian Philosophy ("Vedānta Vindicated" by Rev. J. F. Pessein) and has, so far as his dogmas have permitted him, accepted Shaṁkara's exposition. The Prapanchasāra, as has already been said, is the first book of its kind and has shown that all the different forms of Sādhanā which these days go under the generic name of Hinduism are in harmony with Vedānta and that all Mantras are meant for the realisation of the Supreme Brahman.

The Introduction has been re arranged to follow the arrangement of the text in the present edition.

The proofs were read and the table of contents and the alphabetical index of the verses made by Sj. Panchānana Sāṁkhya-Vyākaraṇatīrtha.

THE TANTRĀLOKA OF ABHINAVAGUPTA

Ed. by R. C. Divivedi & Navjivan Rastogi

The Tantrāloka—the magnum opus of Abhinavagupta, the tenth century stalwart and an Indian genius of all times from Kashmir, is both an inspiration and a challenge for the students of the tantric lore. It offers an encyclopaedic and systematic analysis of the tantric material. It is the most important source of authentic tantric information comprising as it does the divergent fields of philosophy, sādhanā, yoga, literature, liturgy, ritual as well as historiography.

The whole project is planned as follows:— Vol. I—Foreword, Introduction including 4 appendices; Vol. II—Text of the Tantrāloka and Viveka, Āhnikas 1—3; Vol. III—Āh. 4-7; Vol. IV Āh. 8-9; Vol. V—Āh. 10-14; Vol. VI—Āh. 15-27; Vol. VII—Āh. 28-33; Vol. VIII—Āh. 34-37 plus indices of kārikās and quotations occurring in the commentary. The Text in each volume is preceded by a comprehensive Viṣayānukramaṇikā.

MAHĀNIRVĀṆA TANTRA

Sanskrit Text edited by

Arthur Avalon

Belonging to Kaula School, this work is a compendium on Kulācāra, detailing all the rituals and practices the sādhaka has to observe to attain liberation. In 14 chapters, the work discusses questions regarding liberation of Beings, worship of Brahman, importance of Kulācāra in Kali Age, Revelations of Mantras and elements of worship, Stotra and Kavaca of Devīs, The Dharma and Customs of Castes and Āśramas, purificatory and expiatory rites, and Consecration of Śivaliṅga etc. etc. This is the basic text for Arthur Avalon's The Great Liberation. The book contains an illuminating Sanskrit Commentary on the Text.

KULĀRṆAVA TANTRA

Sanskrit Text edited by

Arthur Avalon

This work expounds the fundamental principles of the Kaula School and its recondite practices as the very means of Self-realization. In 17 Chapters it deals with the aim of the treatise, Parāprāsāda Mantra and The Mahāṣoḍhānyāsa, Substances needed for the worship of the Goddess Śakti, Cakras and various forms of bliss, Yoga and the Advaita doctrine, Rules of Kulācāra, Guru and the disciple—their qualifications and test, Ways of Prāṇāyāma, Mantras, their defects and removal, rites for the attainment of cherished desires. Said to be a pragmatic approach to Advaitavāda, this Sādhana which allows indulgence in wine, woman and meat is prescribed for the duly initiated disciple.
